SENATE PASSES SHOALS BILL BY 55 TO 28 VOTE

Measure Is Similar to One Pocket Vetoed by Coolidge.

PRESIDENT IS SILENT ON DOCUMENT'S FATE

Norris Is Congratulated as Count Shows Victory for His Efforts.

(Associated Press.)

For the second time during the long years of controversy Congress yesterday sent to the White House a bill providing for operation of the Government's $150,000,000 power and nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals.

The conference report on the bill which would authorize Government manufacture and distribution of hydroelectric power was adopted by the Senate yesterday after an hour's debate, 55 to 28, completing congressional action.

The measure was approved by the House last week.

The only other time Congress has passed a bill for operation of the huge war-time plants on the Tennessee River, it was pocket vetoed by former President Coolidge.

Friends Fear Veto.

Friends of the measure approved yesterday said they feared it would meet a similar fate, though President Hoover has not expressed himself on it.

The bill is similar in its power provisions to the one which President Coolidge refused to sign. It is a compromise measure based upon the same bill that was presented to the former President.

Under the compromise provision, the nitrate plants would be leased to private interests for quantity production of fertilizer if a lessee could be found within one year from the date of enactment.

If no one would lease the nitrate plants under the terms of the bill, the Government would operate them for experimental production of fertilizer.

Dam Construction Provided.

The bill also provides for construction of the Cove Creek Dam on the Clinch River, in Tennessee, at an estimated cost of $35,000,000 and completion of the steam power plants at Muscle Shoals. The Clinch River project, proponents of the bill said, will bring the primary power capacity at Muscle Shoals to between 400,000 and 500,000 horsepower.

In addition, the Cove Creek Dam is designed to make the Tennessee River navigable and aid in controlling flood waters that go into the Mississippi.

Opponents of the bill leveled their fire at its provision for construction by the Government of transmission lines to distribute surplus power from Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals.

Distribution of Power.

They contended this would place the Government directly into the business of manufacturing and distributing power. Those who steered the bill through the House said, however, that under its terms for leasing the nitrate plants, there would be little power left for sale.

The bill provides that States and municipalities should be given preference in the sale of surplus power.

Twenty-six Republican regulars voted against the bill in the Senate with two Democrats joining them—

Britain Nears Accord With France on Navy

New Tonnage Figures Expected to Provide Basis for Negotiating With Italy to Eliminate Danger of Armament Competition.

Paris, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—French and British naval negotiators were believed tonight to have reached an agreement on French sea tonnage that will solve the Franco-Italian question to a certain extent, and relieve Britain's mind on the naval situation.

Arthur Henderson, the British foreign secretary, and A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, came here today to work in the Franco-British negotiations, which have been handled recently between R. L. Craigie, British admiralty expert, and Count Rene Massigli, for the French.

Tonight they held a late session with Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and Charles Dumont, French minister of Marine, with Lord Tyrrell, British Ambassador to France, also sitting in.

The session lasted until a late hour and after M. Briand, Mr. Henderson and Lord Tyrrell had departed, Mr. Alexander and M. Dumont remained with their technical experts, still busy.

This started reports that an accord had been reached, with figures on French tonnage and distribution of ships, and it was held likely that the agreement would be signed tomorrow.

Following this Mr. Henderson and Mr. Alexander were expected to go to Rome for Italian sanction. Observers believed the Italians might yield some on naval points, after the French had made the first move.

The visit of the British officials is the latest move of Great Britain in an attempt to end the Franco-Italian naval rivalry and thus obviate the necessity of that county building up her own navy in case she feels her sea power endangered.

Such a course on the part of Great Britain, it was said, might avert similar activity by the United States and Japan and thus destroy the whole London agreement. These possibilities indicate the importance attached to the visit of the British representatives and explains why both Tokyo and Washington have been informed of their presence in Paris.

It was officially announced here tonight that the Englishmen had

33 DRY GROUPS FORM ALLIANCE TO OPPOSE RUM

National Conference for Coordinating Fight Agreed Upon.

BOARD OF STRATEGY IS PLANNING DETAILS

Representation Question Hits Snag; College Pledges Will Be Sought.

(Associated Press.)

A majority of the prohibition "board of strategy" chosen from among 33 dry organizations, yesterday settled down in secret session upon the vehicle to coordinate their efforts in the 1932 presidential campaign.

It will be the national conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment, acting as a clearing house for these same 33 organizations to prevent an overlapping of effort.

The national conference itself met late last night behind closed doors to listen to the decision of its strategy board, but details of the discussion were withheld.

Vigorous objections were authoritatively reported advanced at the board meeting yesterday to proposals to create a single all-embracing dry organization to carry on through the campaign. One dry leader, who would not permit his name to be used, asserted both the large and small organizations represented had held back from such a plan.

Feared Being "Swallowed Up."

The smaller groups criticized it, he said, because, upon a basis of representation by the number of members each possessed, they would be "swallowed up."

He said the larger groups had characterized as impossible the other type of plan, which would provide for representation on a basis of two members from each organization. Under it, he said, such units as the Anti-saloon League and the W. C. T. U. would be placed on a par with the smallest of organizations.

During this day the strategy board endeavored to agree upon certain changes to the "plan of organization" of the national conference of organizations. One member described this effort as an attempt to tighten it into a definite and more binding constitution.

Following the strategy board meeting, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Temperance, said one of the proposals considered would enlarge the membership of the national conference to admit individuals as well as organizations.

Could Get Noted Leaders.

"Under such a plan," Dr. Wilson said, "we could possibly gather in such outstanding business and professional leaders as Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone, J. C. Penny, William G. McAdoo and Josephus Daniels.

"Under such an arrangement such men could be given a leadership in a united dry organization similar to that now held by the leaders of individual dry groups."

Later Oliver Stewart, president of the Flying Squadron Foundation, said the present meeting of the national conference and its strategy board was in answer to a challenge by Daniel A. Poling, of New York, head of the World Christian Endeavor

HOOVER'S VETO ON BILLS SAVES VETERAN COSTS

President Rejects Move Admitting Civilians to Soldier Hospitals.

MEASURE TO HELP ALIEN DISAPPROVED

White House Asks for Data on Number of Legion Members in Distress.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

President Hoover yesterday vetoed two bills that would have added to the already heavy cost of the veterans' administration, and at the same time ordered the gathering of data which he thinks will justify his imminent veto of the so-called veterans' loan bill.

One of the bills which the President vetoed yesterday would open the doors of Veterans' Bureau hospitals and soldiers' homes to 7,000 civilians who were employed by the Army Quartermaster Corps in the war with Spain, the Philippine Insurrection, and the China relief expedition.

In his veto message, the President pointed out that in all wars, the Army has employed civilians. If the Government's hospital and homes were to be made available to those civilians who were employed in the war with Spain and in the Philippine and China engagements, the President said, the Government would be committing itself to a policy which could not justifiably be restricted to that particular group of civilians.

Relief for One Denied.

The other bill which the President disapproved directed the Veterans' Bureau to award a World-war bonus certificate to Joseph Marko, who was discharged from the Army because he was a Russian citizen, and therefore a neutral alien.

In vetoing this bill, President Hoover told Congress that there were thousands of men who were discharged under like conditions, and that there was no particular reason to single out Marko for relief.

The President is expected to veto the veterans' loan bill tomorrow or the next day and send it back to Congress with a message of disapproval. Both the House and the Senate are poised to pass it over his veto immediately.

Survey to Be Made.

In the meantime, the Veterans' Bureau and other agencies will be making a survey which the President has ordered, a survey designed to show just how many veterans are in distress and to what extent the loans will help them.

While it has been calculated that the average loan will be about $500, the President has been informed that there is one group of 200,000 veterans who would get an average loan of about $80, and another group of 500,000 veterans who would get an average loan of $137.

The President has been informed that most of the veterans who are in need already have borrowed up to the 22½ per cent allowed under the law as it now stands.

That the number of veterans who are in need is comparatively restricted is indicated by figures that already have been received at the White House.

Chicago Awaits Vote As Heated Race Ends

Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago (right), and Judge John H. Lyle, his principal opponent for the Republican mayoralty nomination to be decided in today's primaries.

70,000 Guards Mobilize to Prevent Violence; Capone Sought.

Chicago, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A final burst of raucous campaigning tonight ended Chicago's bizarre mayoralty primary contest, with William Hale Thompson's political future as the issue.

Mayor Thompson and his two principal rivals for the Republican nomination, Alderman Arthur F. Albert and Judge John H. Lyle, carried their final pleas to the voters up to the small hours of election morning, while an army of 70,000 was mobilized to see that the enthusiasm they aroused did not become violence at the polls tomorrow.

The three-cornered Republican race has been one of the hottest in Chicago's history, and the police and State's attorney feared that its bitterness might kindle a serious flame of disorder.

American Legion members, policemen, State's attorney's officers and volunteers from civic organizations were banded as poll watchers, to be stationed in every precinct to guard

SLAIN WOMAN IS FOUND NEAR VIRGINIA ROAD

Man Discovers Her Nude Body 50 Yards From Highway.

ALL IDENTIFICATION MARKS ARE MISSING

Victim Believed About 30; Resemblance to Missing Person Seen.

In a wind-swept patch of woods a bare 50 yards off the Washington-Richmond highway, near Chandler Station, Va., a death drama that appears inscrutable, was unearthed by a Negro late Saturday, it was disclosed yesterday.

A woman, apparently between 30 and 40 years of age, was found lying face downward, nude and with every bit of identifying matter carefully obliterated.

The body had apparently been in the open but a few days. There were unmistakable indications that it had been deposited since the rains of last week, for there were footprints in the mud leading up to it.

Body Dragged in Woods.

The Negro, W. M. Twiggs, had gone into the woods to look for a dog that had strayed, and his attention was attracted by a flock of birds as they flew away at his approach.

Twiggs notified Justice of the Peace G. F. Conway, at Bowling Green, and the latter immediately began an investigation. Observations of the scene led him to believe that the woman was probably slain at some point between Washington and Chandler Station, since the muddy tracks of an automobile were traced on a northward route, after the machine had backed out of the woods.

His assumption is that the body was brought about 50 yards up a private road, then dumped on the ground and dragged 40 yards into the woods, which is on the farm of James Cosby. It had been held by the heels and dragged face downward, judging from the footprints made in the mud.

Police Are Baffled.

The tracks then show that the murderer retraced his steps to the machine and fled, unseen, to a point probably far north of Fredericksburg.

Mr. Conway admitted last night that the police were baffled in their examination. The woman's features were unrecognizable, and the vital organs are missing. There was no jewelry on the body and there was no clothing.

Police are only able to surmise what the woman looked like. Their reconstruction is this: That she was a brunette, about 30 or 40 years old, 5 feet 6½ inches tall, and weighed about 140 pounds.

She had well-manicured hands, and her hair was recently waved. The strands were about 8 inches long, having been bobbed. There were six teeth missing, two upper and four lower molars, and there was no identifying dental work, the bridges having been removed, probably to forestall identification. Mr. Conway said that two of the lower front teeth were the smallest he had ever seen, both being about the size of grains of rice. Her feet also were very small.

Cause Not Apparent.

There was no possibility of establishing the cause of death, it was stated. The skull bore no fractures and no bruises.

The body was taken to an undertaking establishment at Bowling Green, where an inquest was held. Nothing definite was done, however, a continuance being granted to provide more time for investigation. Because of the condition of the corpse, it will not be possible to embalm it, and it will be necessary to bury the body not later than tomorrow, the justice of the peace said.

A point of probable importance was the fact that the woman's hair had apparently been dyed. The roots were gray, but the main portion of the hair was a deep brown.

The body was viewed by residents of Caroline County. They were of the opinion that there was a general resemblance between the features and

BILL TO AID JOBLESS IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Wagner Measure Is Voted as Body Kills Substitute Framed by Doak.

(Associated Press.)

Overriding an administration substitute proposal by an overwhelming majority, the House yesterday passed the Wagner bill to establish a national system of employment exchanges.

The substitute proposal of Secretary Doak was rejected by a teller vote of 182 to 84. Without a record vote the House approved the original Senate bill, the last of a 3-point employment program sponsored by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York. The other measures became law recently.

The proposal to provide employment exchanges supported jointly by State and Federal Governments now goes back to the Senate for composure of minor differences.

Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, led the floor fight for the measure. It received virtually solid Democratic support, Minority Leader Garner having thrown his weight behind it several days ago.

Opponents pleaded for support of

Former Japanese Envoy Near Death

Hanihara, Outspoken Foe of Exclusion Act, Was Here 1922-1924.

Tokyo, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Masanao Hanihara, Ambassador to Washington from 1922 to 1924, who created a stir by predicting that the proposed Japanese exclusion act would bring "grave consequences," was in a coma today, after failing to rally from a paralytic stroke. Physicians said his recovery was doubtful, as the patient developed pneumonia and other complications.

After Mr. Hanihara expressed his fear of the exclusion act he became the target of its advocates, who interpreted his statement as a threat against the United States. As the outcome, Mr. Hanihara was recalled to Tokyo.

He retired from the diplomatic service and since his return to Japan continued to contend the immigration law should be revised in the interests of better relations between Japan and the United States.

NEIGHBORHOOD ROW ENDS IN STABBING

Fathers in Maryland Fight Over Sons' Differences; One Is Near Death.

As the climax of a neighborhood quarrel in Branchville, Md., yesterday, Claude Hughes, 46 years old, is in a serious condition in Providence Hospital after being stabbed near the heart by Paul E. Dement, of the same town.

The quarrel had its origin when Dement, who is about 30, told his grandson not to play with Hughes' son, according to police. Dement surrendered to Judge Herbert P. Moffat, of Hyattsville, about two hours after the affray. He was placed in the Marlboro Jail, charged with assault with intent to kill.

Hughes was given a transfusion shortly after being brought to the hospital and doctors hope that his strong constitution will enable him to recover. The transfusion was given by a girl employed in the hospital, who had been prepared to give her blood for Jackie Bennet, an 8-year-old boy who was accidentally shot while playing. It was considered that Hughes' case was more urgent and another donor was obtained for the boy.

According to witnesses, the fight took place between the houses occupied by the two men, who live near one another. Dement told his grandson, Donald, 6 years old, not to play with Kenneth Hughes, 8-year-old son of the injured man, it was said. Several blows were struck before Dement allegedly brought the weapon, a penknift, into use.

Dement, when he surrendered to Judge Moffat, claimed that he acted in self-defense, the judge said.

Chicago Listed Lower In Crime Than Capital

(Associated Press.)

Any impression that Chicago is the crime center of the United States was disclosed last night by Representative DePriest to be erroneous. The Illinois Republican, a Negro, said in the House that crime statistics showed Chicago ranked sixty-seventh on the list of cities, according to population percentage.

DePriest, who represents a Chicago district, added that Washington, D. C., was higher on the crime list by 37 cities than Chicago. He said Washington was thirtieth on the list. "Chicago is not the crime center of America as reports from a political battle would indicate," the Negro asserted.

MOTHER, SON DROWN DURING HOLIDAY TRIP

Father Rescues One Child in Accident at Camp Near Annapolis.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 23.—A Washington's birthday holiday outing in the country for a Baltimore family of four, turned into tragedy here today, when the mother and a 16-year-old son drowned in South River at Camp Conoy, 4 miles from Annapolis.

Duke C. Sibley, jr., 35, of 5309 St. George avenue, Baltimore, and his family drove early this morning to Camp Conoy, grounds of the Baltimore Y. M. C. A.

The wife, Blanche, 34, and two children, Jack, 10, and Beverly, 3, walked out on the camp pier. The mother stumbled over a board and fell into the water. The two children were knocked in with her, in about 8 feet of water.

Sibley, nearby, heard the screams and dashed to the scene. He managed to get the little girl ashore and then went to the rescue of his wife and other child. The task was too great for him, however. Mrs. Sibley, a rather heavy woman, nearly dragged her husband down with her in the frantic struggle.

The screams were heard by a nurse in the home of Commander Richard H. Knight, U. S. Navy, nearby, and W. W. Purdy, in charge of the camp

13 Patients Are Saved From Burning Hospital

Salem, Va., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Thirteen patients were rescued from the Mount Regis Sanitorium near here today after fire was discovered sweeping through the basement and the lower floor.

Four emergency patients were carried out by Miss Loveleen Dawson, a night nurse, and firemen. Other patients descended by the ladders from the building.

HOUSE AND SENATE HONOR WASHINGTON

Church and Patriotic Bodies Also Pay Tribute to First President.

The House of Representatives and Senate joined with the American Legion, church and other patriotic organizations yesterday in marking the anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Both houses of Congress devoted some time to tribute to the first President, but pressure of work kept the lawmakers from taking a holiday, along with Government workers and others in the Capital.

President Hoover, too, was kept close to his desk and was unable to observe yesterday as the official holiday.

One of the leading observances of the anniversary was a military mass celebrated at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, inaugurating the annual commemoration of Washington's birthday by the American Legion of the department of the District of Columbia. The Right Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese, presided, with the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the church, as celebrant of the mass.

The church was taxed to capacity by the throng which gathered for the mass. The services were made impressive by a guard of honor of 100 Marines from Quantico, who massed the colors of every legion post in the District of Columbia on each side of the main altar in the sanctuary before the services began.

The sermon was delivered by the noted Dominican orator, the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, who pleaded for better law observance on the part of American citizens and a return to the ideals of Washington.

Father Smith expressed the fear that in its looseness of law observance the United States was headed on the path of dissolution followed by Rome, in departing from the height of its glory.

The mass was sung by the Immacu-

Calvin Coolidge Says:

One of the most astounding spectacles is the complacency with which the people permit themselves to be plundered by extravagant governmental expenditure under the pretense of taxing the rich to help the poor. The poor are not helped but hurt. Taxes have to be collected by the rich before they are paid. They are collected from all the people. A higher tax means real wages are lower. The cost of living is higher. The chance to work is less. Every home is burdened. Its value is decreased. The quality of the food, clothing and shelter of the children is reduced.

The Congress and the legislatures know these results of extravagance; the people may not fully realize them, but they suffer from them. Legislators do not want to be extravagant. Minorities drive them to it. The people who pay and suffer give little vocal support to economy. They make no threat of political retaliation against those who are taking their money, increasing their cost of living, removing their chance to work. Those who demand appropriations inspire all the fear. Aggregate State and town debts, national and local taxes are increasing enormously. Unless the people resist vigorously and immediately they will be overwhelmed.

Senate Gives Congressional Tags Legal Status in Bill

Traffic Measure Is Passed, Exempting Members From Parking and Other Motor Restrictions in District; Proposal Abolishes Office of Director.

Members of Congress exempted themselves from some of the restrictions of District traffic laws under provisions of the conference report on the new District traffic law agreed to yesterday and approved by the Senate.

The House is expected to approve the report today and that will make necessary only the signature of the President to make the measure law.

The report of the conferees was a compromise between the House and Senate bills, the high light of which was a provision giving legal status to "congressional" tags for the automobiles of members of Congress. These tags would entitle their possessors to special privileges, such as parking in restricted zones when on official business.

Tags would be issued to members of Congress by the District Commissioners, and would be numbered. At present they are issued by the secretary of the Senate and the sergeant at arms of the House. Under this arrangement, it has been complained, hundreds of the tags have been issued to clerks and other attaches and even are used by children and other members of the families of representatives and senators.

Issuance of congressional tags for automobiles was initiated by the District Commissioners as a means of promoting good will with representatives, but the results were such that the Commissioners were shortly to rid themselves of the job of distributing them and turned it over to executives of the House and Senate. Once the special preference tags were started it

Oil and Tariff Bills Tabled in Committee

Leaders, Urging Curb on Imports, to See Hoover in Effort to Force Reconsideration of Measures by House Group.

(Associated Press.)

The drive of independent oil producers for protection against foreign imports was abruptly halted yesterday by the House ways and means committee. By 13 to 7, the revenue committee that framed the Hawley-Smoot tariff act, voted to postpone all tariff and embargo measures because "there would not be sufficient time during the remainder of the session for the consideration" of such bills.

With this vote the committee decided not to meet again this session, ending not only oil legislation but also the Burtness bill indorsed by Chairman Legge for a temporary embargo on depressed agricultural products and the Williamson bill for a ban on all Russian products.

Refusing to accept the decision of the committee, representatives from independent oil territory planned to send a delegation before the unofficial Republican steering committee today in an effort to gain the support of party leaders and force reconsideration by the committee.

This move will be preceded by a caucus of oil State representatives. Earlier in the morning Senator Capper, Representative Hoch, both Republicans of Kansas, will carry the case of the independents directly to President Hoover, with whom an engagement has been made.

When the general postponement resolution was offered, Democratic Leader Garner moved that an exception be made of oil tariff proposals. His motion was defeated, 13 to 7. Committee members said six Democrats were joined by one Republican in favor of Mr. Garner's motion.

Representative Ramseyer (Republican), Iowa, made a similar request that the Burtness bill be reserved for consideration, but he was defeated, 17 to 3. The committee then adopted the postponement resolution by the same vote by which Mr. Garner's oil motion was rejected.

No direct vote was taken on the independent compromise substitute for the Capper-Garber bill.

Representative Garber (Republican), Oklahoma, called the committee action "a vicious betrayal by standpat Republicans in the East." He named Representatives Treadway, Massachusetts; Bacharach, New Jersey, and Estep, Pennsylvania, Repub-

Two Youths Find 10-Pound Bomb on School Playground

Boys Are Interrupted While Hammering Deadly Airplane Missile in Basement at Home After Discovery Is Made on Lot.

Two 12-year-old youths, bound in quest of adventure, succeeded in finding it yesterday afternoon in the shape of a 10-pound airplane bomb, which they unearthed on the playground of the Emery School, Lincoln road and Randolph place northeast.

Partially concealed under a pile of dirt, the bomb was discovered by James R. Carroll, jr., of 27 Randolph place northwest, who in company with Bernard Wood, his playmate, who lives next door, had gone to the school grounds "to find something to do." As the two boys were playing near the far end of the lot, young Carroll suddenly discovered the end of the bomb protruding from the dirt.

It was immediately dug from the ground and carried to the basement of the Carroll home, where the boys were trying to "see what was inside" when James R. Carroll, sr., the boy's father, entered and took possession of the bomb.

At the Second Police Precinct where the bomb was taken, it was declared that the missile was fully loaded, although the fuseeap which causes it to explode, had been removed. It was placed in a corner to await the arrival of the homicide squad, who took it to police headquarters.

The bomb is of the type used by the air forces during the World War, and weighs approximately 10 pounds. It is torpedo shaped, with four small "wings" at one end. Police declared it was extremely dangerous to handle and were at a loss to know how it happened to be on the school grounds. Headquarters detectives are investigating.

those of a Mrs. Clara Liser, who at one time resided in the county. She is believed to have moved to Baltimore, the latter part of November, and has not been seen in Caroline County since. Baltimore police were asked to attempt to establish definitely whether Mrs. Liser is still in that city.

The Virginia authorities are convinced the woman was murdered elsewhere, and merely deposited at the place she was found. The woods bore no evidence of a fight, and the absence of clothing was pointed out as indicating that she was slain in some house, where her clothing was removed. The body was then taken to an automobile and the driver simply drove until he came to a deserted spot where the possibility of immediate discovery was remote, it was contended.

Virginia police declared frankly they had no hope of unraveling the mystery until an identification was established. They hope to learn her identity through publicity given to the meager description of the body, and they plan to then cary on an intensive campaign to learn how she met death, and who was responsible for the murder.

DEATH MET CALMLY BY MRS; SCHROEDER

Dague and Doomed Woman Leave Stories of Lives as Only Bequests.

Bellefonte, Pa., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A trinity o fillicit love, spectacular crime and ignoble death was completed today for Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague.

The former waitress and her sweetheart died in the electric chair at Rockview Penitentiary shortly after 7 a. m. for the murder of Corpl. Brady Paul, of the State Highway patrol.

They faced death calmly. Neither spoke a word. A slight tremble of the 22-year-old girl's fingers as she was strapped into the chair was the only sign that her nerves were at all unsteady.

Death March Signal.

Mrs. Schroeder, mother of a 5-year-old son, died first, four minutes after the death-dealing electricity was applied. Dague also died within four minutes after the current began coursing through his body.

Mrs. Schroeder spent her last minutes with a hymn on her lips.

"He walks with me and he talks with me——" she began softly, but her song ended abruptly. Th esignal for the death march had come.

Her love for the once respectable Wheeling, W. Va., salesman, which led him to desert his wife and two children to follow a career of crime, climaxed by the slaying of Paul, their flight to Arizona, and their capture there after a skirmish that ended in the death of an Arizona deputy sheriff, was manifest to the end.

At her request, the Rev. H. O. Thompson, of Piedmont, Ohio, their spiritual adviser, spent the last minutes with Dague, while the Rev. C. F. Lauer, prison chaplain, walked with her to the grim death chamber.

Both she and Dague went to their death apparently assured by religious consolation. In letters they wrote to Mr. Teagarden, they said:

"We both know the blood of our Saviour, eJuss, has cleansed us of all sin.

Bequests Are Outlined.

"'We do not want life imprisonment now. * * * We are both ready to leave this world of trouble and sin. Our hearts are full of joy. * * *

"We are waiting for these few hours to pass when we are going to eternal joy and happiness."

As the letters were read to newspaper correspondents by Mr. Lauer, tears streamed down Mr. Teagarden's cheeks. Later he said the pair had left wills which were in effect the stories of their lives, for they had no physical property to bequeath. He said it was their wish that these documents be sold, for publication, if need be, and the proceeds used to help support Dague's son and daughter, and Mrs. Schroeder's son, Donnie.

In Mr. Teagarden's care, Dague's body tonight was on teh way to West Virginia for burial beside that of his mother. Mrs. Schroeder's body likely will be sent to Bellaire, Ohio, tomorrow there to rest also beside a mother's grave.

Wheat Quality Is Paris Problem

European Conference Told American Grain Excels Continent's Crops.

Paris, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The European wheat conference, meeting here today in semisecrecy, encountered an obstacle at the outset this afternoon at its first plenary session in the question of grain quality.

Paris for the time being has become the potential clearing house of the excess 1930 European crop, and delegates of 24 countries are trying to arrange some sort of marketing agreement between importing and exporting countries.

Today the importers raised the question of quality early in the discussion, pointing out that the soft central and eastern European wheat has not the desired consistency present in American grain. The matter is of such importance that a committee was directed to study it all day tomorrow and report at an evening session.

store, was notified. Mr. Purdy communicated with City Patrolman Harvey Avery, who sent the rescue squad out, under charge of Henry Weaver. Meanwhile, Capt. Edward N. Dixon, of the State Conservation Navy, who was nearby, hurried to the scene and succeeded in recovering the two bodies. The Purdy family brought the little girl to the hospital, where Dr. Joseph C. Joyce reported she probably will recover.

Sibley, in his great excitement, probably would have drowned in his vain effort to save his wife and child if outside assistance had not arrived. Dan Armiger, John Smith and Edward Hopkins, passing by the camp site, stopped, while George Cadle, also of the rescue squad, was a prompt arrival.

The rescue squad worked for several minutes upon the mother and child but Dr. Joyce reported that their efforts were fruitless, as both probably were dead when recovered.

DISTRICT'S SCHOOL BUILDING PROGRAM WILL BE HASTENED

Gotwals Hopes to Have All Projects Under Way by Next January.

$2,920,000 AVAILABLE TO RUSH CONSTRUCTION

Will Afford Employment to Many Workmen; Will Hit Portables.

All of the new schools and additions included in the 1932 appropriation bill passed last week by Congress will be under construction by January 1, 1932, if the plans of Maj. John C. Gotwals, District Engineer Commissioner, do not go amiss. The measure included an appropriation of $2,840,000 for schools, and in addition there is an unexpended balance of $80,000 also available.

Continuing his policy of pushing all District construction work as far ahead of schedule as possible, Maj. Gotwals said that he expects to be a year ahead of the school building program by next year. His purpose is twofold—first, to provide employment for idle workers, and second, to provide the District with adequate school facilities.

With the completion of the school buildings included in the 1932 appropriations, the death knell will virtually be sounded for the portable school except in rare instances. School authorities estimate that the new year program is adequate to provide facilities for all children now in the city, and in some cases provision will have been made for the gains in enrollment for several years to come.

Projects Being Listed.

Maj. H. L. Robb, Assistant Egineer Commissioner, who is in charge of construction, is now preparing a list of the school projects for the year, the date when plans of each will be finished by the municipal architect's office, and the date the contract will be let.

As the appropriation for construction work has previously not been available until the opening of the new fiscal year, Maj. Gotwals is enabled this year to get started about four months ahead by the provision making the funds immediately available upon the signing of the appropriation bill.

For the first time in recent history the slate of District construction projects will be so clean by the early part of March that the municipal architect's office will be able to set to work at once on next year's plans.

Seeks to Set Precedent.

Even the problem of erecting the first unit of the huge municipal center will not interfere with the plans of Maj. Gotwals to set a precedent in school construction and silence congressional criticism that has been directed at District authorities in previous administrations.

The entire District engineering department is being highly organized to carry out the 1932 building program. Special committees and subcommittees have been appointed to direct the Municipal Center work.

Schools and additions which will be in the hands of contractors by the end of this calendar year are as follows:

Continuation of Roosevelt High School, $400,000; completion of Young School, $300,000; completion of Brown Junior High, $300,000; eight-room building at Connecticut avenue and Upton street, $140,000; eight-room plant, vicinity of Burleith and Glover Park, $145,000; eight-room addition to Douglass-Simmons School, $130,000.

Other Structures Planned.

Eight-room addition to Harrison School, $140,000; six-room addition to Orr School, $80,000; four classrooms at Key School, $60,000; ten rooms, gymnasium, &c., at Macfarland Junior High, $200,000; Paul Junior High addition of ten rooms and gymnasium, $180,000; beginning of junior high school in Brookland-Woodridge section, $200,000; four rooms at Woodridge, $110,000; new Jefferson High School beginning, $200,000; Randall Junior High Gymnasium, $40,000.

Gymnasium and three classrooms connecting Hine Junior High and Towers School, $55,000; fifteen-room addition at Giddings, $170,000; new school at Fourteenth street and Kalmia road, $110,000; four-room addition to Murch School, $30,000, and Janney School, $120,000.

Fog Is Cattle Thief As Herd Disappears

Visalia, Calif., Feb. 23.—Mysterious "theft" of an entire herd of dairy cattle from the ranch of Mrs. K. C. Jacks, south of Oakgrove schoolhouse, was explained when lifting fog revealed the cattle, 40 head, peacefully grazing in a nearby field. In much excitement Manual Jacks reported loss of the herd to Sheriff R. L. Hill, who, with Deputy S. B. Sherman, hurried to the ranch.

They spent considerable time examining tracks and investigating and were debating "ways and means" when the fog rolled back and the cattle were seen. They had wandered through a break in the fence to a neighboring field.

Capitol-Area Ban Sought On Religious Lobby Offices

House Bill Would Banish Such Activities From Half-Mile Radius.

(Associated Press.)

A bill declaring it to be a public nuisance for any organization connected directly or indirectly with any religious organization, engaged in legislative activities to occupy any premises within one-half mile of the Capitol was introduced last night by Representative Tinkham, of Massachusetts.

The bill would not affect places of worship. It would impose a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000 for violation.

In a statement in connection with the bill the Bay State Republican, an antiprohibitionist, declared:

"There is in Washington a manifest violation of the spirit of the Constitution, separating church and state, and the traditions of the republic that the church shall not interfere with the state and that a free government is a government independent of ecclesiastical control.

"Two boards," he said, "officially established by sectarian authority and supported by sectarian funds, have their headquarters near the Capitol, from which they direct political and legislative action.

"One is known," Mr. Tinkham explained, "as the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which Dr. Clarence True Wilson is general secretary, and the other is the Commission on Prohibition and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of which Bishop James Cannon, jr., is chairman. * * *

"An extensive investigation by * * * the Senate lobby investigating committee disclosed that these organizations were constantly interfering, not only with legislative, but also with executive and judicial action. Furthermore, in the case of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, it was revealed that sectarian funds had been expended for political purposes in the political campaign of 1928."

late Conception Choir, under the direction of Prof. Harry Wheaton Howard, and the Boys' Sanctuary Choir, under the direction of Brother Lewis. Soloists were Miss Florence Yocum, Miss Kathryn Bowers and Frederick Nolan, accompanied by Prof. Howard at the organ, and by a stringed orchestra under the direction of Ann Arlen.

Ceremony Broadcast.

The ceremony was broadcast from the church through Station WOL.

After the mass, luncheon was served to 1,000 legionnaires in the parish hall by the ladies auxiliary of the organization. The Marines were also guests at luncheon, and were later guests at the Earle Theater.

Bishop McNamara, Maj. B F. McNeil, commander of the District Department of the legion; the Rev. Joseph Sullivan, deacon at the mass; Prof. Howard, the Rev. S. A. Czyz, subdeacon; Father Smith, Father Bartholmew, of the Graymoor Friars, Capt. Reynolds Hayden, U. S. N., and Capt. J. P. McVey, U. S. M. C., were guests of Father Hurney at luncheon.

Semiofficial Observance.

Representatives of the English, French, Italian and Polish governments attended the services.

After luncheon a patriotic meeting was held in the auditorium adjoining the church, and the audience heard addresses by Representative Hamilton Fish, William Tyler Page, Commissioner Herbert Crosby and Col. William L. Peek.

The ceremonies at Memorial Continental Hall, which have come to be regarded as a semiofficial patriotic observance, were conducted under the auspices of the Sons of the Revolution, Daughters of the American Revolution, Sons of the American Revolution, and Children of the American Revolution. Dr. Thomas Edward Green, president of the Sons of the Revolution in the District of Columbia, was presiding officer.

Medals Are Presented.

The United States Marine Band Orchestra furnished the music for the program and enlisted men from Battery C, Sixteenth Field Artillery, Fort Myer, acted as ushers.

A feature of the exercises was the presentation of a gold medal on behalf of the Sons of the Revolution to Elizabeth Bryan, of National Cathedral School, for the best essay on "Contribution of the Carolinas to the War of the Revolution." Another medal was presented to Mrs. Irene Blythe, of George Washington University, from the Daughters of the American Revolution, for the best essay on "American History."

Former Senator Augustus Owaley Stanley, of Kentucky, delivered an oration on Washington and greetings were brought by Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, retired, from the Board of Commissioners of the District, and officers of the societies also brought greetings.

Beck Is Speaker.

The House of Representatives convened an hour earlier than usual to hear an address by Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania, considered one of the leading authorities on constitutional government in the United States.

Washington expressed the belief that the Union could not endure unless it was based on an equitable distribution of political power and a proportionate contribution of the States to the burdens of government," Representative Beck declared.

He contrasted Washington's ideal of the Union with present political conditions.

Warns of Dangers.

"In considering the future continuance of that Union, Washington today would be very deeply impressed by a danger of which the American people are seemingly only half conscious," he said.

"The great purpose of those who were most instrumental in calling the Constitutional convention was to construct a government upon a more equitable foundation. Taxation was to be imposed directly by a new government, in proportion to the relative ability of the States to contribute, and the political power to appropriate was to be distributed in the same equitable proportions. Such was the policy of Washington, Franklin, Wilson, Morris, Madison and Hamilton.

"We know their wide purpose was defeated by the smaller States' threat of secession from the Convention of 1787, and to secure any constitution, Washington and his colaborers, after many months of fruitless discussion were obliged to acquiesce in equal representation in the Senate. As a result, a State which has less population than a single ward in the City of New York has as many senators as the great State of New York," Mr. Beck said.

Borah Lauds Courage.

In the Senate, George Washington's recognition of the government set up by the French Revolution in the latter part of the eighteenth century, was praised by Senator Borah as a "marvelous exhibition of courage and vision."

"No one in the Cabinet approved of the practices of the French Revolution, but Washington said that while it was a bloody road it was the only road to a sane and stable democracy."

Senator Bratton, of New Mexico, read Washington's "Farewell Address" before crowded galleries as the session opened.

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, then delivered an address in which he said historians had done Washington an injustice in "dehumanizing him."

Descendant Is Speaker.

"It does not detract from his greatness to recognize that he possessed human frailties," the senator declared.

Thomas Campbell Washington, great-great-great-grandnephew of George Washington, in a radio address over the National Broadcasting System said last night that the first President's farewell address was a "priceless document."

"Its observance by our people has, undoubtedly, preserved the independence and prosperity of this Nation," Mr. Washington said.

Representative Sol Bloom, vice chairman of the Washington Bicentennial Commission, delivered the principal address at a meeting of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, held yesterday morning at the Western Presbyterian Church.

Davis, Held in Senate, Is Too Late for Speech

Senator James J. Davis had been scheduled as one of the speakers at the American Legion observance which followed a military mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday.

But the Senate was in session and he reached Immaculate Conception Auditorium just as the legionnaires were filing out of the door.

It was impossible to get them all together again to hear the senator's speech on Washington, but that did not stump the resourceful Pennsylvanian. He passed out copies to individual legion members.

Among other things Senator Davis' speech would have said:

"Thank God Washington was a human being, a creature of flesh, bone and blood, not a spineless ghost."

He denounced the muck-rakings of writers and speakers in seeking to darken the character of Washington, and said that the general's personal habits were those of his contemporaries.

Battery Trains Succeed; First Test in Ireland

Dublin, Feb. 23.—Tests so far made in Ireland of running railway trains by means of power supplied by a battery are declared to have been a success, although full power from the batteries was not used.

Further full-power tests are to be made, and it is expected that a train with a 60-ton load will attain a speed of 50 miles an hour.

The battery is the invention of Dr. James Drum, the Irish scientist, and has aroused great interest throughout Europe. The batteries can provide power for 60 miles of peration, and when the trains stop at a station they can be recharged in ten minutes. It is proposed, however, to enable trains to recharge their batteries while running by means of live rails along parts of the line.

MORE WICKERSHAM DATA ARE PROMISED

Chairman Criticized by One of Group for Submission Without Consent.

(Associated Press.)

Transmission to the Senate of additional data upon which the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission based its prohibition report was promised yesterday from within the commission.

Simultaneously there came criticism of Chairman Wickersham by one member of the commission for having submitted any of the testimony without the approval of the full commission.

In answer to a resolution a confusing mass of material was sent the Senate late last week, including prohibition surveys of 32 States. Less than 24 hours after its arrival, however, a second resolution was adopted asking for data on the remaining sixteen States and demanding the reason why this had been withheld.

Six States Held Omitted.

One member of the commission, who asked that his name be withheld, said yesterday surveys had not been made of all the 48 States. He estimated that at least six States had been omitted, but asserted data on the remaining ten would be transmitted as promptly as possible.

Included in this latter number are several States in which anti-prohibition sentiment is strong—such as New York and Illinois. The survey of the latter State includes material upon gangster activities in Chicago considered so revealing that the investigator signed an assumed name. He spent some time in the underworld there.

Another member of the commission explained this data had been withheld merely by an oversight. He explained that between 15 and 50 copies of the first 32 State reports had been made available to the commission by Dr. James M. Doran, former Prohibition Commissioner. Only single copies existed of the other State reports, he said, and these were in the hands of individual members.

Data Called "Half Truth."

Criticism of Chairman Wickersham by his colleague was made upon the ground that he had submitted the facts requested despite the objections of the few commissioners then in Washington.

Although the Senate had asked only for "nonsecret" data, it was held yesterday that this testimony conveys "only a half truth" and will not disclose the real evidence upon which the commission based its report.

One member asserted further that the entire selection of what material was sent and what withheld had been made by the commission chairman. He contended that the testimony of Prohibition Director Wodocock, given while an investigator for the commission, should have been withheld as secret. In it Woodcock advanced "home option" as a possible solution for the prohibition problem.

HOOVER'S VETOES AID TO VETERANS

These show that in a certain city which has 20,000 veterans, only 159 are known to be in distress, while in another city that has 140,000 veterans, only 1,700 are known to be in distress.

In vetoing the bill to open the doors of veterans' hospitals and soldiers' homes to civilians who worked for the Army in the war with Spain and in the Philippines and China engagements President Hoover said:

Note With Veto.

"It would commit the Government to a policy which, if once embarked upon, could not justifiably be restricted to this selected group of civilians who served during the three periods of hostility mentioned. In every war the Government is obliged to avail itself of the assistance of many who are not a part of the enlisted, enrolled or commissioned personnel of the Army and Navy, but who perform their duties under contracts providing, we must assume, for their proper compensation, inasmuch as they are entirely voluntary and terminable at the will of the employe. Their services under such contracts, no matter how effective or valiant, have never been regarded as giving them the same claim upon the bounty of the Government as those who entered the military or naval services and were subject to military law and to the rigors and hazards of war until the restoration of peace or disability or death released them. The committee on pensions, House of Representatives, was probably impressed by this thought when they amended the bill originally to eliminate the provision for a pension for this group.

"I do not think we may lose sight of the fact that during the World War there were thousands of civilians engaged in occupations necessary to the carrying on of the combat forces, who might argue as consistently as this group that they are entitled to consideration and hospitalization at the hands of the Federal Government. We quickly recall the arduous service performed by the many civilians who served with the troops overseas during the World War, to say nothing of those who served in cantonments and ports of embarkation and debarkation in the United States. Some were in the employ of the Government and others were not, but they worked in a common cause and it would be hard to draw the line between them."

2,440 on Waiting List.

The President reminded Congress that there is a waiting list of 2,440 veterans who are in need of hospitalization.

In vetoing the bill providing for a bonus certificate for Joseph Marko, President Hoover pointed out that Marko had been honorably discharged pursuant to an order from the War Department which directed that all "neutral alien nondeclarants" should be discharged on their own request.

"I further note," said the President, "that there were thousands of men who were discharged under like conditions and that there is no special or peculiar merit in Mr. Marko's case which would single him out for relief that is not extended to all others in the same class."

Heflin Urges Placing Of Flag Above Pennant

(Associated Press.)

A resolution was introduced yesterday by Senator Heflin (Democrat), Alabama, requesting the Secretary of the Navy to refrain from permitting the pennant indicating that religious services are being held on board ship being placed above the American flag.

Under the resolution the pennant would be raised on a separate staff in some other part of the ship. The resolution states that the United States flag is "the emblem of both civil and religious liberty, and as such is entitled to the first and uppermost place." He has introduced a similar measure in past Congresses.

O'BRIAN'S ADDRESS AROUSES DIPLOMAT

Italian Ambassador Asks for Text of Speech of U. S. Official.

(Associated Press.)

A public "explanation" by John Lord O'Brian, Assistant Attorney General, of certain remarks about Italy in a New York speech Saturday night appeared last night to have averted what might have become an international incident.

The full text of O'Brian's remarks about Italy, constituting only a small part of his speech, was requested yesterday by Ambassador de Martino of Italy from the Italian consulate in New York. Pending receipt of the text, Italian Embassy officials declined to comment.

There appeared little likelihood, in view of O'Brian's explanation that he had not intended to cast any aspersions on Italy but merely made the remark by way of contrast, that the matter would be taken up officially.

Butler Incident Remembered.

The ambassador recently received a formal apology of the American Government to Premier Mussolini after Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, of the Marine Corps, in a speech told of an alleged incident which depicted the premier as a "hit-and-run" driver.

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A delegation of Italian-Americans, led by a man prominent in the anti-Fascist movement, planned to go to Washington tonight to lay grievances against the Italian Ambassador before President Hoover.

The delegation, composed of civic and fraternal order leaders, announced they would ask the President to declare Ambassador Giacomo de Martino "persona non grata" because of his atttude in the Gen. Smedley D. Butler affair. They also alleged he "has caused dissension and strife in Italian-American communities."

Address Is Explained.

Girolamo Valenti, general manager of the newspaper Il Nuovo Mondo, Italian-American newspaper, said the delegation would be headed by Dr. Charles Fana and would be joined in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington by other delegates.

Discussion was rife in Italian-American circles today over an address by John Lord O'Brian, first assistant Federal attorney general. Talking in Brooklyn Saturday, he was quoted as saying "Thank God, we do not live in a country such as Italy, where a dictatorship of one man can make a horizontal slice in wages."

Later he said it was not his purpose to cast aspersion on Italy or its rulers. Il Progresso, Italian newspaper, communicated with the Italian Ambassador, requesting that the envoy consider a demand for an explanation from the State Department.

Speaker on Radio Lauds Washington

Dr. J.N. Baker Praises Soul Qualities of Nation's First President.

Perhaps Washington can not be classed as a soldier with Caesar and Napoleon, but he had far greater qualities of soul than either of them, Dr. J. Newton Baker declared in a Washington's Birthday address delivered over Radio Station WJSV.

"A few great men can make a nation glorious," he declared. "They are those who break the chains of oppression and those who bring liberty and independence to the people."

"It was indeed fortunate that the Colonists had a man with prudence, the resolution, the judgment, the patriotism and the integrity to lead the armies in that momentous period for life and existence. It is even more fortunate for the Republic that such a man was found to inaugurate the new government."

Sauerkraut Expert Has No Time for Jail

Buffalo, Feb. 23.—"I just can't go to jail today," Fred Kahnt, 40, told Judge Patrick J. Keeler in city court.

"And, Mr. Kahnt, why can't you go to jail today?" Judge Keeler asked. And Mr. Kahnt eloquently boasted that he was the best cook in all of Buffalo of pigs knuckles and sauerkraut and it was on menu for today at the institution where he was employed as chef.

"I ought to be at my stove now," he added as an after thought; "those fellows out there will starve to death if I don't get back on the job."

Patrolman Alvin W. Letwinker, when asked why Mr. Kahnt was among those present, replied he found him at Main and Exchange streets boasting of his culinary ability to a lamp post. Judge Keeler suspended sentence.

Rabbit Climbs Tree, Game Warden Says

Albert Lea, Minn., Feb. 23.—Take the word of a game warden for it—a cottontail rabbit ran right up a tree and sprawled out on a branch for a nap.

Most folks say a rabbit would not leave the ground, but C. W. Turnbull, the warden, came on one sunning itself 12 feet above the ground.

"In all my hunting experience and as a game warden I never before heard of a rabbit climbing a tree," he said. "But just as true as I am standing here this rabbit, an ordinary cottontail, was sitting in that willow tree."

DRY GROUPS DECIDE ON RUM FIGHT PLAN

Movement, to produce a unified command among the country's individual dry organizations.

Mr. Stewart said he had submitted an elaborate constitution for a new organization, which would provide a sharply centralized board of strategy of three men to guide the working of the dry forces. He added this had not yet been acted upon by the conference.

College Campaign Planned.

Meanwhile the Methodist Episcopal Board of Temperance announced it would institute a Nation-wide campaign for the signing of old-fashioned temperance pledges among school and college men and women.

Dr. Wilson said pledges already had been signed by more than 600,000 Negroes throughout the South in the past two or three years. He said six college men would be selected to carry on the new campaign, and that he expected a million pledges a year to be signed for the next five years.

SHOALS BILL VOTE IN SENATE LACKS TWO-THIRD MAJORITY

King, of Utah, and Tydings, of Maryland.

Twenty Republicans supported the measure with 35 Democrats.

Senate Roll Call.

The roll call showed the advocates to be just shy of the two-thirds majority necessary to override a veto. The roll call follows:

For:

Republicans—Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Couzens, Frazier, Hatfield, Howell, Johnson, Jones, La Follette, McNary, Horbeck, Norris, Nye, Pine, Robinson, of Indiana; Schall, Steiwer, and Thomas, of Idaho. Total, 20.

Democrats—Barkley, Black, Blease, Bratton, Brook, Broussard, Bulkley, Caraway, Connally, Copeland, Dill, Fletcher, George, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Hayden, Heflin, Kendrick, McGill, McKellar, Morrison, Pittman, Robinson of Arkansas, Sheppard, Smith, Steck, Stephens, Swanson, Thomas of Oklahoma, Trammell, Wagner, Walsh of Massachusetts, Walsh of Montana and Wheeler.—Total, 35.

Against:

Democrats — King and Tydings. Total, 2.

Republicans—Bingham, Carey, Dale, Fess, Glenn, Goff, Goldsborough, Hale, Hastings, Hebert, Kean, Keyes, Metcalf, Morrow, Moses, Oddie Partridge, Pearson, Phipps, Reed, Shortridge, Townsend, Vandenberg, Walcott, Waterman and Watson.—Total, 26.

Traveled Rough Road.

The measure's journey through the Senate was reminiscent of the rough road it has traveled through ten years of controversy. The conference report was called up by Assistant Republican Leader McNary and immediately aproved without a word of debate on a record vote.

Its opponents had ben caught unaware and when they learned what had happened Senator Bingham (Republican), asked for reconsideration of the vote by which the report was approved.

His request was unanimously agreed to, but after an hour's debate the Senate again aproved the report.

The Muscle Shoals plant was erected during the war for the manufacture of explosives. Ever since the war it has been the subject of debate in Congress between those who wanted to have the Government operate it and those who wanted it to be used by private interests.

Norris Is Victorious.

Throughout the years of controversy Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, has urged its operation by the Government. It was his bill, modified somewhat, which was finally approved.

As the vote was announced Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, shook hands with Norris to congratulate him on his victory. The debate was a brief condensation of the arguments which have been made on Muscle Shoals through the years.

Bingham said he was opposed to Government operation and favored selling or leasing the project. He said he believed in the principles of his ancestors, that prosperity could come only through the initiative of individual citizens.

Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, said if the bill was vetoed it would be an issue in the 1932 Presidential election, and added that if the present Congress does not override the veto there will be another chance in the next Congress.

Democratic Leader Robinson said while he was opposed to Government operation he felt it was "high time" for Congress to make some disposition of the wartime plants.

Others who joined in the debate included Senators Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania; Black (Democrat), Alabama; Heflin (Democrat), Alabama; Smith (Democrat), South Carolina); Johnson (Republican), California, and Norris.

MELBA TO BE BURIED IN NATIVE AUSTRALIA

Noted Singer, Victim of Skin Malady, Was Popular in This Country.

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Mme. Nellie Melba, who died last night in a hospital here, is to be buried on Thursday at Littledale, Victoria. The funeral services will take place at the Scottish Church, where her father used to sing in the choir.

Tomorrow the body will be taken to Melbourne, the city from which Nellie Porter Mitchell fashioned the name by which the world knew one of the great sopranos of all time, and the people of her homeland will have their opportunity to do her honor.

Her last request was that a minister be summoned and with his prayer in her ears she passed peacefully into a slumber that was unbroken until death came.

Wished Speedy Death.

Tokens of the world-wide sorrow in the last few days bore testimony of the affection with which Dame Melba was regarded throughout the world. Three times King George and Queen Mary cabled words of sympathy and hope. Messages from Europe and America literally poured into the hospital.

Although the singer's body was wasted with disease it was only a few days ago that she recognized that her end was approaching. She whispered to John Lemmone, her lifelong friend, "I pray God that I die no lingering death."

The famous prima donna returned to Australia several weeks ago, after having contracted an illness in Egypt which responded to treatment at first but recurred after she began the journey back to Australia.

Forced to Leave Ship.

She had to leave her ship and enter a hospital at Sydney, but became better and continued to Melbourne, which she regarded as home. She took ill again and has been in a hospital since, her condition aggravated by the intense heat of the Australian summer.

Her illness took the form of a strange skin disease which baffled physicians. She was 65 years old.

Nellie Melba, "the Australian nightingale," known to music lovers the world over for the wonderful purity, flexibility and sweetness of her voice in its dazzling upper registers, was universally acclaimed by critics as one of the greatest sopranos of any era.

Well known in the United States, which she toured numerous times, both in grand opera and in concert, Mme. Melba also was the pride of London musical circles and idol of the Parisian public. Her success in Italy, Russia, Germany and in her own native Australia was equally notable for the high honors accorded her.

The musical education of Mme. Melba began when she was 3 years of age, but it was only through long years of hard, determined work that she advanced herself to a place in the foremost rank of great singers.

U. S. Debut in 1893.

Mme. Melba made her first appearance in the United States with the De Reszkes at Chicago during the World's Fair of 1893. In 1897 she headed the Damrosch-Ellis Opera Company on its tour of the United States, opening in Philadelphia November 29 in "Faust" with the French tenor Ibos.

She appeared subsequently in America in 1900 and 1902, when she selected "Rigoletto," and again in 1903 appearing in "Faust." In 1907 she was engaged by Oscar Hammerstein for the Manhattan Opera House, where she sang lyric roles, and again in 1908, when she was heard in "La Boheme," "Tosca" and Verdi's "Otello." In 1913, in company with Jan Kubelik, she made a concert tour of the United States and Canada, giving more than 100 performances in all of the larger cities.

Mme. Melba was born May 19, 1859, near Melbourne, Australia, and took her stage name from that city. She was the daughter of David Mitchell, a contractor. At the age of 19 she married Capt. Charles N. F. Armstrong, son of an Irish baronet, and the following year a son, George Nesbit Armstrong, was born to her. A separation from both husband and son followed a short time later, and in April, 1900, Capt. Armstrong, then engaged in ranching near Galveston, Tex., obtained a divorce.

In recognition of her work on behalf of the British soldiers during the war, Mme. Melba was made a dame of the British Empire, a title she is said to have valued second only to her marvelous singing voice.

HOUSE PASSES WAGNER BILL TO CARE FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

the administration measure on the ground that the Labor Secretary had maintained the Wagner bill would hinder rather than help further employment.

The substitute would have expanded the existing system without embracing the State-Federal cooperative phase of the Wagner measure.

Chairman Graham, of the House judiciary committee, told the House he "never heard of a more tyrannical and unjust invasion of the rights of States" than was embodied in the Wagner provision for Federal aid to Government-supervised agencies.

"I think the substitute ought to be passed," insisted the Pennsylvania representative. "The man charged with executing this proposal tells you it will not work."

Mr. LaGuardia asserted the substitute was sponsored by the National Manufacturers Association because, he said, "they want to bring about lower wages for their employes."

"This (Wagner) bill is the original Hoover idea," the New Yorker added. "It is the plan recommended by the unemployment conference of 1921 of which President Hoover was chairman."

The entire New York Democratic delegation lined up in the active fight for the measure, and they were joined by Representatives Cooper, of Ohio; O'Connor, of Oklahoma, and Maas, of Minnesota, Republicans.

The Wagner bill would authorize $1,500,000 for the first year and $4,000,000 for the next three years of operation. Seventy-five per cent of this could be apportioned to States electing to establish the employment offices on a dollar-matching basis. A director general of employment would have charge of the work, with a special bureau in the Labor Department.

A Federal employment council, including representatives of laborers and employers would assist the director general in meeting employment problems.

Representative Oliver (Democrat), New York, asserted President Hoover was "trying to make a great man" of Secretary Doak.

"But he won't do it this way," Mr. Oliver added.

"Four million people are out of work; they don't want arguments on the Constitution, they want jobs," Mr. Oliver added.

Opponents said that not even advocates claimed the bill would give immediate unemployment relief. They contended it would take two years to put into operation.

Six Die as Storm Hits Italian Cost

Shipping Suffers in Gale Sweeping Mediterranean; 20 Smacks Sink.

Palermo, Sicily, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Ships in the Mediterranean tonight were bucking heavy seas and high winds in a storm which began Saturday night and was still continuing. Commerce was delayed and there was some loss of life.

In Palermo Harbor twenty fishing smacks and a coal barge sank, and at Port Licata an Italian steamer ran aground. Outside Palermo several ships were anchored awaiting better weather before moving into the harbor.

Floods took six lives and worked heavy property damage in the low-lying sections of Palermo, Syracuse, Messina and other island towns, leaving some areas under water. Shipping was delayed at the Island of Malta, and a Japanese steamer was reported in distress not far from the island. The storm was so bad at Marseilles that the port was practically inaccessible.

2 Collisions Halt Chase of 4 Miles

Maryland Resident Makes Bond on Reckless Driving Count.

A spectacular chase in the Northwest section Sunday afternoon was echoed in Police Court yesterday when Joseph E. Hall, 21, of Takoma Park, Md., was arraigned on charges of leaving after colliding and reckless driving. He demanded a trial by jury on both charges and was released under $500 bond.

The chase was carried on over a 4-mile course from Fourteenth and S streets northwest to Piney Branch road northwest, according to testimony of Policeman A. Rickett, of the traffic bureau.

Two collisions figured during the chase, Hall's automobile striking another vehicle en route and a telephone post finally, Rickett stated. It was when the car struck the telephone pole that the chase terminated.

The automobile which Hall's car is said to have struck was operated by Wilmer T. Snowden, of 2311 Connecticut avenue northwest. Miss Judy Hamilton, of the Wardman Park Hotel, an occupant of Snowden's car, was slightly injured and treated at Emergency Hospital. After the collision with Snowden's automobile 14 motorists joined Rickett in the chase.

was found that they couldn't be abolished.

The flags have no legal sanction in the past, but under the provisions of the conference report agreed to yesterday they will have legal status and specifically give extra privileges to members of Congress on official business.

The traffic bill is a substitute for the existing traffic law of the District. It abolishes the office of traffic director and in general places control of traffic under the District Commissioners, giving them authority to fix what speed limits they deem wise, without specific limitation, as in the present law.

licans, as "leaders of the opposition who are refusing protection to Western interests."

"Vice President Curtis promised an oil tariff during the 1928 campaign," commented Representative Hastings (Democrat), Oklahoma. "The industry knew that with a favorable recommendation from the President legislation could have been had this session."

Representative Crowther (Republican), New York, said he had supported the oil tariff and the agricultural and Russian embargoes.

"I voted against the postponement particularly because I have a bill to cure the tariff situation on sugar syrups which will cost the Treasury $100,000,000 a year unless corrected," Mr. Crowther said.

"Sugar is coming in under low tariff brackets as syrup contrary to the intention of the law, also, because of a mistake in the 1930 act, refined sugar is imported at less duty than raw."

Drunken Driving Charged.

Charles E. Ellis, 21, of Rittenhouse street, near Fifth street northwest, was charged with driving while drunk yesterday after his car crashed head-on into another on Fourteenth street near Harvard street northwest. William Garner, of Kensington, Md., was at the wheel of the other machine. Neither was injured.

Boston, Feb 23 (A.P.).—Capt. Frank M. Hawks, holder of two American transcontinental speed records, was notified today he had been selected by the Ligue Internationale des Aviators, in Paris, as America's outstanding aviator for 1930.

The message said Dieuddone Coste, French pilot, who flew from Paris to New York with Maurice Bellonte, had received the "Ace of All Aces" award.

Capt. Hawks, who established his eighteenth intercity speed record today when he flew to Boston from Washington in two hours and twenty minutes, an average of 189 miles an hour for the 440-mile flight, was informed of the Paris awards in a message from Col. C. W. Harwood and Capt. Harry A. Bruno, vice presidents of the American section of the Ligue.

Man Gives Self 10-Day Sentence

Celebrant of Washington's Birthday Appears on Intoxication Count.

Arthur Washington, 30-year-old Negro, sentenced himself yesterday in Police Court to serve ten days in jail on an intoxication charge.

Washington pleaded guilty and explained to Judge Gus A. Schuldt that he was celebrating George Washington's birthday. Judge Schuldt then asked if he had been in court before. "Yes sir," replied the Negro. "I celebrated Washington's Birthday several months ago and had to come to court."

Judge Schuldt commended the defendant on his frankness and gave him a chance to sentence himself. The Negro took the minimum.

CRITICS OF LINCOLN, WASHINGTON SCORED IN UNIVERSITY TALK

80 G. W. U. Graduates Told by Dr. Hart Debunkers Will Be Curiosities.

PRESIDENTS CALLED GREATEST IN HISTORY

Records in Lives of Both Chiefs Cited to Belie Recent Attacks.

An address in which the debunkers of George Washington and Lincoln were taken to task, and the two Presidents were shown to have many traits in common, was made to 80 graduates of George Washington University last night by Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, historian for the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

Dr. Hart's address was the principal one at the midwinter convocation of the university at Constitution Hall. Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, made a brief charge to the graduating class and conferred the degrees as they were presented by Dr. William A. Wilbur, the provost of the university, and the various deans.

Prior to the convocation, a program of organ music was played by John Russell Mason, librarian of the university. The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, offered the invocation and benediction.

Recent Biographers Scorned.

Directing his scorn at the recent biographers of Washington and Lincoln who have emphasized allegedly unpleasant episodes in the lives of the two Presidents, Dr. Hart declared that these writers will later come to be literary curiosities, "valued by the collectors as being the worst of their kind, the most pretentious and the most venomous."

As a proof that these writers have not given a true picture of Washington and Lincoln, one has but to turn to the records made at the time that the two Presidents were living, Dr. Hart pointed out.

The methods of these writers is to quote and enlarge all the incidents "established or invented" to the discredit of the two men.

Greatest Men in History.

"No student of history, no intelligent and impartial man or woman interested in the American Republic, can refuse to recognize the historic fact that the two greatest men in the history of the Republic have been Washington and Lincoln," Dr. Hart declared. "The hundred biographical volumes on Washington and the 25 or 30 on Lincoln, with few exceptions, recognize that George Washington made the American Union possible and that Abraham Lincoln prevented it from breaking up."

In his charge to the graduates, Dr. Marvin asserted that the need of the day is a willingness quietly to order one's life in relation to the social good. Wise leadership, he observed, is not in contending vocally for any cause.

"The first attitude is needed," he said, "to realign our democratic institutions that they may meet the purposes for which they were developed."

Three Art Museums Dedicated in Berlin

Special to The Washington Post.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—Berlin has been busy in dedicating three new museums, an unusual trio of events even for the intellectuals of the capital city. They are the Asia Minor Museum, the Pergamon Museum and the German Museum. All three buildings are on the northern part of Spree Island. The Pergamon Museum is attracting most attention because of the Pergamon altar with the gigantic frieze of King Eumenes II.

At the Asia Minor Museum the procession street of the god Marduk with a relief of lions, and the Ishta gate of Babylon are the main attractions. The German Museum is featuring masterpieces of German art before the nineteenth century.

Chaplin Renews Talkie Attack After Debate

London, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Charlie Chaplin visited the House of Commons today and, after he had heard the debate, remarked to one of the members that he liked the talkies less than ever.

The comedian sat in the distinguished strangers gallery and then inspected the press gallery where he declined a drink in the bar.

To make it a day, he inspected the House of Commons Library and remarked that the books there were real, unlike some of those at the prime minister's residence, Chequers Court, which he said were merely imitations for mural decorations. Chaplin spent Saturday afternoon at Chequers as the guest of Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

VACATION IS AT END FOR SUPREME COURT

Decision on 18th Amendment May Be Given Today; 46 Cases Pending.

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court will return from a three-week vacation today with a decision pending on the validity of the eighteenth amendment.

Its opinion in the Government's appeal from the decision of Judge William Clark, of New Jersey, who held the amendment was improperly ratified, may be handed down during the day.

Another important case in which a decision may come today is the appeal of four large oil companies from a lower court ruling that they were violating the Sherman law through patent license agreements. The companies involved are the Standard of Indiana and New Jersey, the Texas Co. and Gasoline Products, Inc.

Interests Other Industries.

The case has been followed closely by other industries which may be affected by the decision, notably the radio industry, whose cross-license patent agreements are now being tested in court proceedings initiated by the Justice Department.

In all, the court has 46 cases in its hands for decision. As is customary, cases presenting similar issues have been combined, and 37 opinions will dispose of the 46.

The first case to be taken up when the court resumes the hearing of oral arguments is the controversy between the United States and Utah over title to the bed of certain parts of rivers in that State, valuable for oil and gas.

Federal Taxes Involved.

The validity of Federal taxes on income derived from oil and gas leases on State-owned land is involved in the second case on the program.

The court will then take up for consideration a brand new question growing out of the development of aviation. It will decide in a case from Illinois, brought by William W. McBoyle, whether the Federal motor vehicle theft act applies to stolen airplanes.

DRY RESUBMISSION PLAN URGED BY DILL

Democrat Is Firm Against Commitment of Party on March 5.

(Associated Press).

Resubmission of national prohibition to the people for a test was advanced yesterday by Senator Dill, of Washington, a Democratic prohibitionist, as a compromise in the perplexing wet and dry dispute facing the party.

However, Senator Dill joined with the almost solid front of Democrats in Congress against the reported intention of Chairman Raskob to seek a commitment of the party on prohibition at the March 5 meeting of the Democratic national committee.

Senator Dill first spoke of the national referendum in a New York speech Saturday night. Democrats of the antiprohibition faction asked him about it yesterday, looking upon it as a compromise solution.

"I state," said Senator Dill, "that it will be entirely consistent with the principles of democracy to resubmit the question of prohibition to the people in accordance with the terms of the Constitution."

He said there were two ways of resubmission. First, a constitutional convention; second, the submission to the States by Congress of a resolution for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Senator Wagner (Democrat), N. Y. York, an opponent of national prohibition, was one of those regarding proposal favorably.

"I suggest this," added Senator Dill, "as a compromise—not as a remedy."

Meanwhile, it became apparent from the growing sentiment at the Capital that every influence will be brought upon Mr. Raskob to set aside any intention he may have had of seeking to commit the Democratic national committee on the prohibition issue when he comes here this week to prepare for the committee meeting.

There has been no definite expression from Mr. Raskob that he intended to bring up the west and dry discussion, but there have been many reports that he might.

Baker Is Reticent On Liquor Finding

Former War Secretary Pay Tribute to Pershing on Return to U. S.

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker returned today from a vacation cruise ni the Mediterranean. He declined to discuss the Wickersham commission's report, which he signed as a member of the commission despite his advocacy of repeal of the eighteenth amendment. "Mr. Wickersham speaks for the commission," he said.

Gen. John J. Pershing was described by former Secretary Baker as "a commander who will go down through history." He said he had read twelve chapters of the general's memoirs sent to him at Monaco.

To a query about the possibility of his being the Democratic nominee for President in 1932 he answered that it was "unimportant."

Jugoslavia has passed a law authorizing a "bachelor tax" to be paid by all unmarried men, widowers, and legally divorced males between 30 and 60 years of age.

District Farms Held Approaching Infinity

That "approaching infinity" problem that is always appearing to perplex mathematicians has now thrust itself into the District's "farm question," according to a Census Bureau tabulation given out last night.

The situation is this: In 1920 there were 204 farms in the District, while in 1930 there were 104. Since the number is reduced by one-half during the last ten years, the problem is how long will it be until there are no farms.

The statement indicates that most of the farming done here is accomplished with a spade in the back yard. Rapid development of the outlying sections of the city is probably the chief reason for the diminition of the farms.

ROCKVILLE HE-NIGHT NETS SUM OF $4,000

Boxing Show Attracts Large Crowd to Benefit for Fire Fighters.

The tenth annual He-Night of the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department was a huge success, it was announced yesterday by F. Barnard Welsh, president of the fire department. Approximately 3,000 persons journeyed to the hangar of the Congressional Airport at Halpine to view the annual fisticuffs that are paying for the Rockville firehouse.

The receipts were approximately $6,000 and the expenditures between $1,500 and $2,000, so that a total of $4,000 will be added to the department's treasury. The department at present has a $60,000 plant at Rockville and its indebtedness is only $10,000, brought about largely by the popular response to He-Night attractions.

It is expected that a large portion of the profits will be paid into lifting the debt.

Mr. Welsh yesterday admitted that he had discovered two young women who had donned men's clothes and obtained entrance to the affair. The two young women were ordered out, as the department had adopted a rule barring women from the affair.

Two suits for absolute divorce were filed yesterday in circuit court at Rockville. The plaintiffs in both cases are represented by Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, of Rockville.

Alleging desertion of more than three years, Mrs. Margaret M. Holmes, Chevy Chase, Md., filed suit for absolute divorce from William P. Holmes, of Frostburg, Allegany County, Md. The wife asks custody of the 4-year-old son. The couple was married February 14, 1925, at National, Md.

Andrew J. Gray, of Silver Spring, Md., asks an absolute divorce from Mrs. Lillian M. Gray, of Baltimore, Md., alleging infidelity, but does not name a corespondent. The couple was married in November, 1928, and has one child.

They will carry with them a report of missionary activity among the Virginia Methodist women during the past year.

UNCLE SAM IN BUSINESS.

By a vote not large enough to override a veto the Senate has concurred with the House in passing the Muscle Shoals bill. The measure sets up an impracticable plan for leasing the Muscle Shoals plant within one year. If the President should fail to find a lessee the plant would be operated for fertilizer and power purposes by a corporation acting as agent of the Government. This corporation would be governed by a board of three directors, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The executive officer would be a general manager, appointed by the board, together with two assistant managers, one an expert in the manufacture of power and the other an expert in the manufacture of fixed nitrogen.

The three directors would not be permitted to work for pay more than 150 days during the first year, nor for more than 100 days in subsequent years. Their stipend would be $50 per day while working. The general manager and his two assistants would receive a total salary of $50,000 per annum, apportioned by the board. The members of the board would serve for six years, and the general manager would be appointed for ten years, but would be removable by the board "for cause;" and he in turn would have power to remove either of his assistants "for cause."

No more than two members of the board could belong to the same political party. They would be required to "profess a belief" in the success of the enterprise.

No provision is made in the bill for covering employes of the corporation into the civil service. Whether they would be entitled to 30 days' annual leave for sickness, and an additional 30 days for vacation, is not stated. The bill does not fix a scale of salaries for agents, clerks, attorneys, laborers, or other employes of the corporation.

With such a set-up the corporation would be expected to manufacture nitrate and electric power and sell the product. It would pay certain taxes to Alabama and Tennessee. All profits, after deducting costs of operation, maintenance, depreciation and an operating fund, would be turned into the United States Treasury. The corporation's capital would be $10,000,000, drawn from the United States Treasury.

This, in substance, is the socialistic scheme approved by Congress and passed along to the President.

Before the President agrees to this scheme he should obtain a guarantee from the Senate that his nominations to the board of directors of Muscle Shoals shall not be first confirmed and then rejected because they have failed to appoint a general manager and other officers acceptable to senators. He should also make certain that senators will not load down the board of directors with demands for the employment of assorted unemployed relatives, friends and hangers-on of senators. How he can obtain such assurances, and how much they would be worth are questions to be determined by the President, in the exercise of the discretion conferred upon him by the Constitution.

The proposed creation of Uncle Sam's Power and Manure Corporation opens up a dazzling vista of possible expansion, whereby the United States could relieve unemployment by the happy process of organizing other corporations requiring millions of employes. Why not an Uncle Sam Railroad Corporation, to take over and extend the railroads? Why not an Uncle Sam Bus and Truck Corporation, to occupy a growing and profitable field of public utility? What about an Uncle Sam Telephone Corporation, to relieve the harassed public of the extortions of the telephone trust? The telegraph trust should be taken over by the Uncle Sam Telegraph Corporation. Radio should be made free to all by the Uncle Sam Radio Corporation. Every reader, as a free American citizen, is at liberty to extend this list according to his needs.

NO EMBARGO ON OIL.

The proposed embargo on oil is dead. The House ways and means committee refused to lay a tax on motorists for the benefit of a few independent oil producers. The United States will continue to import petroleum and its products to help offset the much larger American exports of oil.

It is significant that the Capper-Garber bill, which would have limited imports of crude petroleum to 16,000,000 barrels per year and prohibited the importation of all petroleum products, was defeated without reaching the floor of either house.

It is estimated by experts that to limit imports of oil as designed, to 16,000,000 barrels a year, would have raised the price of oil in this country $1 per barrel, which would have meant an increase in the price of gasoline of probably 8 cents per gallon. An increase of 5 cents a gallon would increase the gasoline bill of the country by more than $600,000,000.

Kansas produces in round numbers about 40,000,000 barrels of oil a year, worth about as many dollars. In order to give this $40,000,000 to Kansas, figuring that the total production comes from small wells, the country as a whole would be penalized to the extent of fifteen times that amount.

The 24,000,000 automobile drivers in the United States could well afford to take up a subscription of about $1.50 apiece, buy up the total Kansas production and pour it back in the wells. If the embargo had gone into effect those motorists would have had to pay an additional 25 cents on every five gallons of gas.

The United States could not place an embargo on petroleum products without violating a treaty that was concluded only last year with many great commercial nations. The Capper-Garber bill could not have been approved without making the American people eventually dependent upon foreign monopolies for their oil supply. Instead of prohibiting imports from other nations the United States ought to be cutting down its exports of oil and gasoline to conserve the limited and unreplaceable supply of petroleum.

This is the second time that Congress has taken a decisive stand against further exploitation of American oil reserves. When the 1930 tariff act was passed Congress found the demand for a duty on petroleum unjustified. Since then the Tariff Commission has confirmed that judgment in an exhaustive study of the industry here and abroad. It is to be hoped that the country has heard the last of this demand for exploitation of American reserves while all the rest of the world conserves its oil.

EXCLUDING BOGUS SEAMEN.

Since the first quota law was enacted more than 500,000 immigrants have unlawfully entered the United States disguised as seamen. The failure to examine the ships' crews on arrival made it easy for these aliens to leave their ships. Chinese have been paying up to $1,100 to be smuggled in, and Europeans have paid up to $400 each. Practically all of those coming from Europe are men who could not obtain visas from the American consuls. These "seamen" are now scattered through manufacturing establishments in the territory east of the Mississippi. Among those detected have been a goodly number of gunmen.

Congress has before it a bill appropriating $500,000 for the arrest and deportation of such aliens. But the King bill, providing for the examination of seamen, must be enacted if aliens are to be kept out. At least ten bogus seamen enter this side door for every one that is arrested.

Nearly all American vessels in the foreign trade, outside of tankers, sail under mail contract, which permits them at present to carry 50 per cent of Chinese or other noncitizens in their crews. After May 22, 1932, this proportion will be reduced to one-third, which may compel American ships to cease using Chinese. Foreign vessels will be permitted to go on carrying 100 per cent of Orientals or specifically excluded persons, thus placing American shipping at a great disadvantage.

The King bill will apply equally to American and foreign vessels, and by preventing the unlawful entry of aliens posing as seamen the bill will tend to obviate discriminations in favor of foreign vessels.

PERU UPSET AGAIN.

Peru is in the grip of another revolution. Reports leaking out through a rigid censorship indicate that the southern half of the country has rebelled against the provisional government of Sanchez Cerro. This fresh outbreak is not a surprise, for Peru has been in turmoil ever since the Leguia government was overthrown last August.

The plight in which Peru now finds itself illustrates the precarious nature of every revolutionary regime. Col. Sanchez Cerro set a precedent for revolution when he overturned Leguia. The current revolt began in the same area where Col. Cerro initiated his own insurrection. He faces a similar ordeal to that which he imposed on the president who preceded him.

Except in desperate cases, revolution is not the remedy for abuses in government. Some South American countries are learning this lesson at a high cost. Col. Cerro has doubtless done all he could to maintain order in Peru. But he had set an example of lawlessness which had an unfortunate psychological effect upon the people. A proclamation just issued by Cerro recognizes that fact. "Unhappily," he writes, "liberty has been confused with license."

Peru has been in a state of unrest ever since the provisional government was set up. Revolts and riots have been frequent. Every faction with a grievance seems to be taking advantage of the situation to make its influence felt. Col. Sanchez Cerro was forced to appoint a new cabinet, and he may have to make other concessions. It is impossible to determine the strength of the revolution under way in southern Peru, but since uprisings have become the order of the day it may take a long time to restore order.

CANADA'S TARIFF.

The storm of protest that invariably follows the adjustment of tariff schedules is raging in Canada as a result of the raising of the import levy on automobiles. The government has fixed a valuation for customs purposes of 80 per cent of the list price of the car. In effect, this increases the duty against imported cars in the $1,000 class by $127 and against cars in the $5,000 class by approximately $1,000. The Canadian motor industry is, of course, elated over the new rates, but dealers generally and American manufacturers are incensed.

The effect of the increase will be to keep American-made cars out of Canada for the time being, at least. But in the long run American manufacturers will find a way to compete, either through the establishment of branch factories in Canada or by fixing the price of the American product at a point where, despite the tariff, it will be able to compete with the Canadian. There will be a readjustment period in which the American manufacturer and his Canadian distributor may suffer, but ultimately it will be found that the tariff is no less beneficial to the United States than it is to Canada.

If, as an effect of the comparatively heavy levy, the establishment of a Canadian motor car industry is encouraged, heavy imports of raw materials will be drawn from this country. All home industries will increase Canada's population and general prosperity, thereby making the country a heavier trader with the United States. Canada is justified in affording ample protection to her infant motor car industry and all other industries. The policy that has developed the resources of the United States is the proper policy for Canada.

THE DESTROYER SITUATION

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

One of the greatest handicaps to naval efficiency in the past has been the unbalanced building programs submitted to the Congress. Apparently naval officials up to recent years have never had any hope that any particular Congress would recognize the value of all the different types of vessels which go to make up a balanced fleet. Thus in prewar days it was felt necessary to concentrate on battleships. During the World War the successes of the submarine gave the Navy Department a good argument for building this type. It also was obvious that we should build ships which could best combat the submarines. These were destroyers. After the war all effort was concentrated in arguments for 8-inch cruisers.

In each of the four cases above cited Congress was convinced after a number of years of talk and argument and finally authorized the construction of a large number of ships of the type then being advocated by the Navy. But as soon as we had a considerable number of any particular type, its building ceased and attention concentrated on another.

As above stated, we built a large number of destroyers during the World War. In fact, there were so many that all realized it would be impossible to obtain appropriations for building more. It was obviously desirable that we should build two or three annually, if for no other reason to keep up to date in destroyer design. Only thus could we rectify the errors discovered in our own ships and keep pace with destroyer development abroad. But we then suddenly discovered that we were terribly deficient in cruisers. So all attention was concentrated in getting some of that important type. The destroyer was forgotten.

Once the destroyer was forgotten, it has proved an almost insuperable task to bring it again to public attention—now divided between cruisers and aircraft. In fact, already the situation has become so bad that many years will elapse before it can be rectified, even if we act now. Here are a few facts:

First—We have today about 227,000 tons of destroyers. It is this formidable figure which has lulled us to sleep for so many years.

Second—All these destroyers were built on a design prepared in 1916, fifteen years ago. Our ships are, therefore, far inferior, ton for ton, to British and Japanese destroyers. Even the French and Italians have much better boats.

Third—The contracts for all these destroyers were awarded during the war. They were given to every company and navy yard which claimed it could build a destroyer. Many of them had never built a destroyer or any other naval vessel before.

Fourth—Most of these ships were either built in great haste during the war or very slowly after the war. Neither of these conditions favored good construction.

Fifth—Due to patent difficulties many companies building destroyers had to utilize machinery of mediocre design.

Sixth—Because of the shortage of material during the war much poor material was used. Only three years after completion many condensers were in very dangerous condition. I personally saw the unfavorable effect this defect had upon destroyer operations.

Seventh—It was for such reasons that the London conference placed an age limit of twelve years on war-built destroyers. Every one of our destroyers reaches this limit in 1934. British and Japanese are using this age limit for destroyer replacement. Already the destroyers of all the great naval powers are larger and much more heavily gunned than ours.

But, just for the purpose of argument, let us assume that our destroyers will last sixteen years. This is the highest limit ever mentioned for destroyers. If we apply that limit our destroyers will reach it by 1938—every last one of them. Further assume that destroyers can be built in two years, which is fast for peace-time construction.

Our allowance of destroyer tonnage in the London treaty is 150,000 tons. This tonnage must, therefore, be laid down by 1936. It is already 1931. Even if we begin now we have only five years to lay down all our allowed tonnage. It is a question only of arithmetic to show that we must lay down 30,000 tons of destroyers annually. The eleven destroyers asked by the Navy Department, will total about 17,000 tons. Thus it is far below the necessary quota.

If we take no action this year, only four years will remain to lay down 150,000 tons of destroyers. This would necessitate an annual quota of 37,500 tons. Even if we build these amounts of destroyers it must be remembered that we will only reach the levels of the London treaty in 1938, instead of 1936. For the next seven years we will be very weak in the destroyer type and we will enter the 1935 limitations conference under a great handicap.

For the reasons set forth above, it would seem that the building of eleven destroyers now is a very minimum of construction if there is any intention of reaching the allotments of the London treaty even by 1938.

It's the little things in life. The incidental effects of a man stopping a bit of lead that is going too fast has developed a great industry in several large cities.

Shades of Roosevelt! The little oil producers of Kansas endeavoring to force a half-billion dollar rise in the cost of gasoline upon the big robber oil trusts!

Taxation without representation once raised quite a ruction in this country. Our worthy vets must realize, vice versa, that they can't have representation in a billion-dollar bonus without taxation.

Army engineers estimate the cost of the proposed Nicaragua canal at a mere $700,000,000. If a bill could be rushed before this Congress a trifle like that could be appropriated quickly.

EYESIGHT

Optician, tell me if you can
Correct the vision of a man?
And can you truly measure what
His eyes discover or do not.
And have you glasses he can buy
His faulty sight to rectify?

You say you can relieve the strain
And make the finest printing plain
And find the glasses to reveal
The joys which failing eyes conceal
But what of him, whose blindness is Produced by hate or prejudice?

Have you the art to set aright
A bigot's ever narrowing sight
Or help a man the good to see
Where he believes it cannot be?
What glasses can you offer him
Whose eyes are blinded by a whim?

What of those eyes filmed o'er with hate?
Can you set such a vision straight
And help the man the good to see
In one he thinks his enemy?
Have you a glass, concave or flat,
To give man's eyes such power as that?

The Longer a Patient Man Endures, the Harder He Strikes to Pay the Score.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MOST evils, as you know, have within them the germ of their own destruction.

Excess leads at last to satisfy, and abuses invite the reform that corrects them.

Prohibition was brought about by the arrogant corruption of the saloon system; the antitrust law was the fruit of monopolistic dishonor and the abuse of power; and the censorship dreaded by libertarians is more and more urgently invited by the ever-increasing foulness of the drama.

Two cinema productions now being shown proclaim and defend a girl's right to illicit love, and current stage successes contain lines that no decent actor can speak without a feeling of shame.

What is to be done about it?

It may be argued that vile plays corrupt few innocents, since none but sophisticates attend them, but any truth that argument may contain does not apply to cinema productions. "Movie" patrons are young. And if evil productions never were seen by innocents, their effect still would be degrading, for the times reflect the stage no less than the stage reflects the times.

If the cinema teaches the world how to dress, how to furnish a house and how to bob its hair, who can doubt that it also affects the moral standards of a generation?

Hollywood is the arbiter of fashion, in morals as in manners, and voluntarily or involuntarily it must provide an example of decency.

Does censorship seem a violation of freedom? Whose freedom? To censor decency is to restran none but the indecent.

There is now a censorship of obscene matter offered for mailing. There are laws to prevent the distribution of pornographic filth and the writing of indecencies in public places. Do these violate the spirt of liberty?

We have innumerable laws to protect our bodies from injury and contamination. Are minds less valuable than bodies? If they are, why do we spend millions to train them in schools? And if they are worth training, why aren't they worth protecting from evils that would poison them?

The great critics of the drama and letters are horrified by any suggestion of censorship, but they are in every instance bachelors or men without children. Thus they are disqualified as litigants, for they have nothing at stake.

The purpose of a censorship is to protect innocents, not sophisticates—children, not adults.

The parent is the one to decide whether his daughter shall be shamed by filth on the stage and urged by the cinema to accept "happiness" without the formality of marriage.

Abuses develop slowly, as the public mind develops a tolerance for them, but the longer their immunity continues and the greater their excesses, the more violent will be the reaction that destroys them.

Right or wrong, good or bad, censorship is brought nearer by every new degree of indecency the public is made to endure.

Hoover's Humanity.

Topeka Capital.

There are some Democrats who, regardless of party loyalty, will not trail along with a campaign of political defamation of Hoover. They will go so far, and no further. They will take advantage of every legitimate "issue" and make use of every legitimate political weapon against him, but they draw the line when Hoover is traduced in his humanity.

An example of a Democrat with no stomach for criticism of Hoover's attitude toward relief of Arkansas and other afflicted States is Senator Ransdell, of Louisiana, an old-timer in politics and in the Senate, who lives on the Father of Waters when he is home. In a speech the other day on the relief issue the Louisiana senator said:

"Senators, I happen to live in the very heart of the overflow section of the Mississippi Valley, and I know personally the work which Mr. Hoover did during and after the flood of 1927 to relieve the distress among our people, caused by overflows which cost $250,000,000 in loss of property value and the lives of considerably more than 100 human beings. Mr. Hoover was not there in a formal way. He went there again and again, and he stayed weeks at a time. He traveled about the distressed regions in boats, in airplanes, on the trains, everywhere and in every manner, and personally did what I consider the most humane and remarkable work of relief of human suffering that ever was done during an overflow of the Mississippi."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Solution of Silver Problem More Important to World Welfare Than Any Other Remedial Action.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That overproduction facilities exist for the big home market in our 48 States, for nearly every line of manufacture from radio to automobiles is apparent to all. Money is cheap and the tendency of banks to expand credit in the manufacture of articles that can not be consumed unless shipped abroad may not be apparent to those most interested, for the ballyhoo salesman is abroad in the land urging people to buy, buy, buy.

It is manifestly evident that if lasting prosperity is to come back we must sell more goods in foreign parts. Furthermore, motion pictures have developed a tremendous demand for articles of American manufacture.

There are those who argue that our tariff law has angered foreign consumers to the point of boycotting or embargoing goods of American manufacture. But all these fears have been largely swept away by higher tariff walls erected by the complaining nations.

The big bugaboo staring foreign exports in the face is the silver question, not the Bryan 16 to 1 bimetallic two standard question, but the complete dumping of silver on the market as so much junk caused by the great silver using countries of India, China, Mexico, South and Central America going to the gold standard.

For thousands of years the natives of these countries have been absorbing silver by the ton. Mr. Darling, an internationally famous economist and financier, a director in the great Midland Bank of London, recently stated that one half of the world is unable to buy what the other half has to sell because their money has been filched from them. Hard silver money has been their medium of exchange since remote ages.

Two years ago the Mexican dollar, used largely in China, was 2 to 1 for the gold dollar. Today it is less than 4 to 1, and the prospect is it will soon be 5 Mex for 1 gold dollar. The ambitious young savage who began saving his silver dollars two years ago to buy a Ford evidentally has a dismal prospect ahead.

It seems to me a proper solution of the silver question is more important than all the drought relief, bonus or tariff questions, yet no one seems to be giving the subject much attention. JEREMIAH JOHNSON.

Wet and Dry Talk Simmers Down to Prospect That Prohibition Is Here to Stay.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is remarkable how little common sense is noticeable in the numerous proposed solutions of the prohibition problem. We are gravely informed that legalized light wine and beer will bring true temperance and keep us sober. There are public thinkers who, in one shape or another, formulate the idea that a system of federalized State option is what we need. We are told without a smile that restoration of hte liquor dealer in governmental leading-strings, with the corner saloon forever padlocked, will bring us back to sobriety and political normalcy.

Some other loosely considered plans for the solution of the prohibition problem have been presented, but few of them seem any more feasible than the funny "home option" of Deacon Woodcock. The best that can be said of them is that they are extremely superficial.

With few exceptions those who make definite suggestions do not seem to realize that amateurish trimming and grafting of the Constitution will get us nowhere and may be dangerous. There will come a day of great humiliation if modifications of basic constitutional provisions, over which pettifoggers can haggle, should be excessively multiplied.

Fortunately we have a President who sees only two substantial courses to follow in the prohibition situation—to enforce the law as it stands and study improved means for its enforcement. And there are others like him, leaders clear-sighted enough to understand that a decade may be considered too short a time, historically speaking, in which to bring about the smooth execution of such a law as that in question. As the matter stands, what in the first place they thought of the wisdom or unwisdom of the prohibition enactment is not now of much consequence.

Fanatic wets may be counted by thousands; the fanatic drys, by millions.

With a resourceful Executive in the White House, who stands for orderly government under the Constitution, the prospect looks bright for adequate prohibition enforcement. I wouldn't wonder if within ten years the eighteenth amendment will seem as much a matter of course as the preamble of the Constitution.

Politics Makes Strange Bedfellows, and Stranger Things Are Promised.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The jester Trinculo in "The Tempest" says, "Misery acquaints a man with strange bedfellows." In its modern wording, "Politics makes strange bedfellows," the truth of the old wisecrack is at present being made as plain as ever.

We have already seen a crowding of Republican and Democratic bedfellows at the public trough which beats anything that has ever happened in our politics.

The situation may grow worse during the next twenty-one months, and in the coming presidential campaign the strange bedfellowship of wets and drys in both parties will be such as I do not believe even Shakespeare ever imagined. F. P. JANES.

LEWIS IS GREETED AS 'FAVORITE SON'

Senator-Elect Expects Next Chicago Mayor to Be Democrat.

Chicago, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Manufacture of presidential campaign thunder for Senator-elect James Hamilton Lewis was begun today as friends welcomed him home from the West.

Leaders of Illinois Democracy saluted him, although not yet sworn into the Senate, as "presidential timber" and "Illinois' favorite son."

Bronzed by weeks under Southwest suns and apparently recovered from his throat ailment, the senator-elect answered the greetings of the entire Democratic ward organization here with predictions that Anton J. Cermak, their candidate for mayor, would be nominated tomorrow and elected in April.

He made no reference to a newspaper announcement in Springfield, Ill., Saturday, that his name would be placed in the Democratic presidential primary in 1932, although his political aid, William L. O'Connell, was given as authority for the statement.

"The hour calls for a change," Mr. Lewis told his attendant partisans. "Chicago is the most misgoverned and worst governed city in the world."

He described taxation as a "stealthy robber who wrenches from merchants and manufacturers all they would put into their plants through which they give employment."

Democratic National Committeeman Michael L. Igoe, minority leader of the Illinois General Assembly, and Mr. Cermak, leader of the party here, were the other speakers at the railroad station round-up. Afterward they led a parade through the Loop, escorted by motorcycle police with their sirens wide open. Banners read "Lewis for President." A band played "Illinois" and "Sidewalks of New York."

against ballot stuffing and violence.

Judge Frank M. Padden ordered an intensive search for Al Capone, gang leader, who is reported to have returned from his Miami, Fla., home to prevent any possible interference on the gangster's part in the election. Squads headed by Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the State's attorney, toured the county under orders to bring Capone in on a vagrancy warrant sworn out months ago by Judge Lyle.

Illinois' Democratic senator-elect, James Hamilton Lewis, arrived today to lend his oratorical powers to the cause of Anton J. Cermak, unopposed Democratic mayoral candidate. Col. Lewis said Chicago was the worst governed community in the country, and blamed Republican city administrations. He urged Democrats to stay out of the Republican contest tomorrow.

The Republican candidates spent much of the day predicting that they would be nominated. Mayor Thompson, however, in a discussion of waterways, threatened to go to Washington "in a few days." New Orleans steamboat whistles could be blowing in Chicago in six months, he said, but "unless somebody prods them up in Washington it will take two years." He said he expected to get twice as many votes as the other two candidates combined.

Albert, supported by United States Senator Charles S. Deneen, said "If each voter will cast his or her ballot as he or she honestly sees the situation, if he or she remembers that Thompsonism controls in both the Lyle and Thompson camps, if he or she votes on the record and reputation of the three principal candidates, I know that my possibility of victory is greater than that of either Thompson or Lyle."

Lyle ignored Albert in his final speeches, but predicted he would win over Thompson by 150,000 votes. "In April I will be elected," he added, "and immediately I will appoint a civilian chief of police, notify the 6,000 policemen to run the gangsters out of Chicago, and I promise you to clean up this town of gangsters within ten days from the date of my election. They simply will not stay here when I go after them."

Although there are 1,340,568 registered voters in the city, John S. Rusoh, chief clerk for the election commission, predicted from 700,000 to 750,000 ballots would be cast, due partly to the fact that Cermak has no organized opposition.

Judges' Approval Advised in Reports

Proctor for Supreme and Hitt for Police Court Are Urged.

Favorable reports were submitted to the Senate by the judiciary committee yesterday on the nominations of James M. Proctor to be judge of the District Supreme Court and of Judge Isaac R. Hitt for another term to the District Police Court bench.

Prompt approval of the appointments is expected to be made by the Senate.

Nomination of Judge John P. McMahon for another term as Police Court judge is before the subcommittee, composed of Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, and Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah.

Senator King held hearings on Judge McMahon last week, the first in response to complaints by lawyers that Judge McMahon was too arbitrary. The second hearing was attended by many times the number of complainants appearing at the first, and these urged reappointment of Judge McMahon.

AGREEMENT IS BELIEVED NEAR UPON ITALIAN-FRENCH NAVIES

come to carry on the negotiations begun by Craigie and Count Massicle, but it was admitted that the conversations had reached a stage of such importance that their presence was desirable.

Britain Is Conciliator.

England is playing the role of conciliator between France and Italy to the end that both may adhere to the London treaty.

Rome, Feb. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The presence in Paris of British Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson and First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander has revived interest here in Franco-Italian naval questions.

The Italian ministry of marine let it be known today that if France feels called upon to build a new 23,000-ton capital ship because of nervousness in Paris over Germany's "pocket battleships," Italy could not afford to lag behind, although she would regret the necessity for building a new battleship to match France's new one. Italy's naval engineers have plans for such a ship ready if it has to be built.

The Franco-Italian situation, which thus appears to have run back again into the old vicious circle, is further complicated by a recrudescence of the popular demand here for definite settlement between France and Italy of the boundaries of their respective African colonies. Italy's capture last month of the Ufra oasis has made her claim for consolidation of her African empire a matter of greater importance than it has been at any time since the World War.

Italy wants a trade route to Lake Chad and to the populous territories beyond which France has thus far refused her. It is significant that Senator Bongiouvanni, former governor of the Italian African colonies, proposes a compromise in the current issue of Rasegna Italiana, an important political review. He suggests that France and Great Britain might both allow Italian influence to predominate in Abbysinia by yielding French and British Somali. Thus, he points out, all Italy's African colonies would be linked together and Italy could renounce her claim to a trade route to Lake Chad.

It is learned that no important talks are in progress between the French Embassy here and the Italian foreign office, either on naval questions or the African colonies.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Mrs. Morrow Honor Guest At Reception

Mexican Embassy Scene of Formal Tea on Holiday.

IN the spacious drawing rooms of the Mexican Embassy, Senora de Tellez received yesterday in honor of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, wife of the senator from New Jersey and former Ambassador to Mexico. Through the long vista of rooms, which extend from the ballroom to the court, moved many of the Diplomatic Corps and officials of the Capital, with smart society turning out in great numbers. An unusual number of men attended yesterday, the reception, happily, taking place on a holiday.

Looking very lovely, Senora de Tellez wore a gown of jade green embroidered in gold. With it she wore orchids. Mrs. Morrow was extremely chic in beige lace, with a scarf of sable and a matching hat. An especially charming note of the reception was the presence of the small son and daughter of the Ambassador and Senora de Tellez, Manuel and Emelita, who seemed to be enjoying the party to the last measure. Upstairs was small Luis, too shy to bother about a formal tea.

The splendid rooms, designed after the fine type of Mexican architecture, further reflected the sunny Southland yesterday through the effective arrangement of flowers in large baskets, and a profusion of palms and ferns.

Among those arriving late was the Ambassador of Italy, Nobile Ciacomo de Martino, who arrived back in town only yesterday after a short vacation in Atlantic City. Those attended included the Ambassador of Spain and Senora de Padilla and their daughter Senorita Dona Rosa Padilla; the Minister of Bolivia and Senora de Medina, with Senorita Maria Hortensia Diez de Medina; Senor and Senora de Sacasa and their daughter, Senorita Maria Sacasa; the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Curtis Wilbur; Admiral and Mrs. Harry Pinckney Huse, the Military Attache of Spain, Maj. Jonquin Igelsias y Albelaira; Mrs. William V. Pratt.

Also, Mrs. Charles L. McNary, the Secretary of the Irish Free State and Mrs. Coleman O'Donovan, Mrs. J. Wallace Dempsey, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, Mrs. Robert McKenzie, the Baron and Baroness von Below, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tennis Team Under Study For Mexico

Contest for Davis Cup to Take Place in May in Southern Capital.

Tennis fans, and hostesses who entertained the visiting Mexican team at the North American Zone Davis Cup matches in Washington last spring at the Chevy Chase Club will be interested in the personnel of the team which, this year, will oppose the American players in Mexico City the first week in May. All players except one are veterans of last year and are recalled with pleasure by those entertaining them. The team includes Senor Alfonso Unda in the singles, and Senor Don Manuel Llano and Senor Miriano Lozano in the doubles. All except Senor Llano were members of the team of last year.

An ardent tennis enthusiast, Mr. Arthur Bliss Lane, American Counselor at Mexico City, probably will repeat in the southern capital his hospitality of last year in Washington, when he entertained at the Metropolitan Club. Mr. Lane, at that time, was chief of the Mexican Division of the State Department. Whether Ambassador Clarke is a devotee of the sport is not recalled, but it is almost certain that the usual gayeties will be forthcoming at the embassy and the week of the games made a gala one.

The young set in Washington well remembers the excitement of "Davis Cup Week" last year, when the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Tellez gave a series of parties for their fellow countrymen, who proved they could dance as well as play tennis, although no evening parties were given until after the final match. Dr. Leo S. Rowe entertained at luncheon in honor of the players and several hostesses hurried home from the matches to preside at tea.

Although the American team has not yet been selected several of the "possibilities" include John Doeg, Wilmer Allison, George Lott and John Van Ryn.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Keough" (also written "Keogh," "Kehoe," &c.) is generally the modern shortened form of the original Irish "MacEochadha," which means "the son of Eochaidh." "Eochaidh" was once a very common Irish personal name meaning "the horseman." The Keogh family has many branches scattered throughout Ireland. Among its early ancestors are included a famous group of poets and many powerful chiefs.

The German name "Brauer" (meaning "the brewer") has a great many variations. Its common Low German forms are "Bruewer" and "Bruwer." The variation "Bruwere" is recorded in a German document of the year 1483.

In the previous article of this series it was noticed that the family names "Cheeseman," "Pepper" and "Spicer" have arisen because the typical early English merchant sold only one article of food. It was the earlier English expression for the modern word "grocer," although it originally meant "he who sells spices." It will be recalled that the word "spices" is derived from the Latin "species," and therefore means "various kinds." Also, it may be observed, that the French equivalent of "Spicer," namely "Spicier," is the common modern French word for "grocer." For some time in early English history a battle for popularity was waged between the words "spicer" and "grocer," with the latter being finally victorious, as we know from modern accepted usage. The Hundred Rolls includes the name of Simon le Spicere, William le Spicere, and William Speciar. That same famous document mentions a certain John le Chaseman, a Martin Peper, and Ricard Pepir.

HOW IT BEGAN — By Russ Murphy and Ray Serrazzy

THE SOLDIERS HORSE
THERE IS AN AGE-OLD SUPERSTITION THAT A FAITHFUL HORSE WILL FOLLOW ITS MASTER EVEN INTO THE NEXT WORLD. AN OUTGROWTH OF THIS SUPERSTITION IS OUR PRACTISE OF LEADING A DISTINGUISHED SOLDIER'S HORSE BEHIND THE COFFIN TO THE GRAVE.
"I KISS YOUR HAND, MADAME"
ANCIENT PERSIANS IN THEIR SUN-WORSHIPING CEREMONIES TOUCHED THEIR LIPS TO THE PALMS OF THEIR HANDS AND HELD THEM UP TO THE SUN. BECAUSE THEIR RULERS WERE THOUGHT TO BE DESCENDED FROM THE SUN, THEY KISSED THE RULERS' HANDS. WE FOLLOW SUIT — WHEN WE PAY HOMAGE.
WHY "TEN-PENNY" NAILS
IN COLUMBUS'S TIME ALL NAILS WERE MADE BY HAND. THE NAIL-MAKERS' GUILD AGREED TO DIVIDE NAILS INTO ABOUT TEN SIZES AND SELL THEM FOR SO MANY PENCE A HUNDRED, ACCORDING TO SIZE. THE BIG NAILS COST TEN PENCE A HUNDRED, SO WERE CALLED TEN-PENNY NAILS.

TOMORROW—Backgammon's Origin; There's a String to It; Stump Speeches.

If you have other ideas as to HOW IT BEGAN, write to Russ Murphy, care of The Washington Post. If you want to see how some other particular custom or saying began, let Russ Murphy know and his answer will be illustrated in this series.

Dare Interprets the Mode

One suit and one coat dress in light green flamenga, a wool and artificial silk mixture. (Dah-ray Designs.)

Paris, Feb. 24.

THOUGH all of the "grand couturiers" seem to be agreeing that printed materials will not be as popular as they have been, still they all show them more or less. Jenny is about the only one who says prints won't be so popular and really backs up what she says by not making any frocks of printed materials. She doesn't like prints, because she says they don't show off the cut of the dress. And you can understand easily enough that when a material is covered with flowers, the dress has to be as simple as possible in cut so as not to give too fussy an effect. And Jenny doesn't make her dresses as "simple as possible!" If they give the appearance of simplicity, it's not because they really are but because the simplicity has been arrived at by very subtle and intricate means.

But back to our prints—although Jenny does not use printed materials at present, she has taken almost unfair advantage of their youthful effects by cutting whole designs and rows of designs out of printed fabrics, and appliqueing on to plain material. For instance, she'll have a border of pink roses applied to the hem of a black tulle dress, and perhaps one or two of the same roses scattered here and there on the skirt or on the bodice of the dress. She loves to do things with the dots and circles cut out of lame prints, also to printed fabrics as incrustation with one side of the incrustation cut perfectly straight and the opposite side cut to follow the outline of the print.

Wouldn't you like to know how to make a new spring hat that with a deft twist here or there can change into three hats? That's quite the latest idea in hats, you know, one hat, three or four hats. In fact, the great Agnes herself invented this idea a couple of seasons ago and every season now has offered a three or four way model with much success.

So make your own Paris hat by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet telling you how to do it—and have three hats, at that, instead of one!

* * * *

You can never tell where a dress really opens these days, what with the way they have false buttons and useful buttons, pseudo-jacquette hems and what-not. Just as you can't tell whether a street frock is a tailleur, a coat-dress or a one-piece dress. The two that I have illustrated for you today, for instance—the one on the left is a two-piece suit after all, whilst the one on the right is a one-piece dress that doesn't make the faintest claim to being anything other than chic. Both of them are made with lightweight wool, and both of them Dah-ray designs.

Then there's Dare's weekly fashion letter in The Sunday Washington Post. You should look for it regularly.

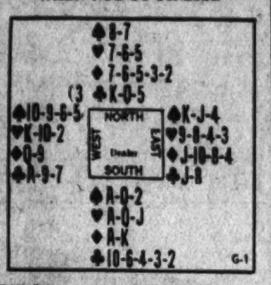
Air Legion Members Instructed in Stunting

Thirty-one members of the District of Columbia Air Legion yesterday received their first instructions in airplane stunting from Lieut. W. C. Buell, their flying instructor, at the Legion Field, College Park, Md.

All of the members have learned to fly in the past year, and recently have been building up their hours with a view to obtaining commercial licenses. The stunting instructions were given in a new air-cooled Kitty Hawk biplane, purchased about a week ago.

WORK ON BRIDGE

WHEN NOT TO FINESSE



WITH the above hand at Auction Bridge, South would bid one No Trump and obtain the contract; at Contract South, with a count of 20, would call two No Trumps and North would bid the third.

In neither game would there be anything sensational about the bidding, but the play was quite interesting. West's opening lead was a Spade; South took East's King with his Ace and had the suit still stopped. Declarer now appreciated the necessity of making up his Clubs and led from closed hand, winning the trick with dummy's Queen when West played small.

Being in dummy and having another Club entry in that hand for a second Heart finesse. North led a Heart and South finessed the Jack. West won with the King and by leading a Spade forced out South's second stopper in that suit. Declarer now had won two Spade tricks and one Club; he was assured of two Hearts and two Diamonds. If being necessary to make up South's Clubs in order to get game, that hand led a second Club. West won with his Ace and cashed his remaining Spades; consequently the adversaries won three Spades, one Heart and one Club, and saved game.

THE CORRECT PLAY

Game was easy for Declarer if West held the Ace of Clubs (as seemed reasonably assured after the first Club trick) provided South did not do any finessing. It was essential that the Club Ace be removed before the adverse Spades were established; so to trick 3 North should have led a Diamond for South to win or a Heart should have been led and the finesse refused. Played in that way and with a second Club to trick 4, Declarer must make at least two Spades, one Heart, two Diamonds and four Clubs.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES

PLEASE tell me when to sow scarlet-sage seed. I want to take some started plants to my summer home. Also, give me the necessary details for caring for the seeds while they are germinating.

MISS POLLY P. L.

Sow indoors in February or March in shallow boxes or pot, placed in a warm, sunny window. Give plenty of air to prevent the plants from becoming weak and spindley by reason of too much heat or moisture. Water just enough to keep the soil moist. On sunny days put the boxes on the porch or sunroom, but bring indoors before the sun sets or the air becomes chilly. When the third seed leaf appears, transplant into other boxes or pots and plant the seedlings in the open in May. Salvia may also be sown in the open in May.

Please tell me whether you consider the zinnia a hard plant to raise. I am especially fond of them and want to try to raise some this coming summer. The only drawback is the fact that the place I have for them is a rather conspicuous one, which would be noticeable if filled with half-sick plants.

MRS. EDGAR T.

You need not hesitate to plant zinnias, as they require very little attention and grow well in almost any soil or location, but will, of course, do better when planted in soil that has been enriched with well-rotted manure. To get early flowers you should start the seed indoors or in a hotbed in March, transplanting the seedlings at least once before putting them in the open ground.

Please tell me how to plant a tree. I have ordered two maples, which, as I live in the country I must plant myself.

HENRY McC.

A tree should be planted in a hole considerably larger than the actual spread of the roots. Set the tree two inches deeper than it was originally. Spread the roots out normally and fill the hole with good garden loam.

When the hole is three-fourths full, pack the soil down firmly. Next add all the water that can be absorbed and complete the filling of the hole with soil. Never place manure or commerical fertilizer where it will come into direct contact with the roots of the tree.

Please tell me the names of the low-growing ferns which are used for filling table ferneries.

MISS NELLIE F. G.

Pteris.

My coleus are filled with mealy bugs. What do you suggest?

ARIA A. K.

Spray the plants daily with cold water, using a forceful spray. Coleus in the house are prone to attacks of mealy bugs.

Please tell me if the madonna lily and the lily listed as the lilium candidum are the same plant.

MRS. THOMAS T. R.

Yes. This is the old favorite and always popular white lily. Sometimes it is called the Ascension lily and is even known as St. Joseph's lily and the annunciation lily. It attains a height of about four feet, bearing on one stem from six to twenty lilies of delicious fragrance.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"PISCES."

IF February 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 11 a. m. to 1:15 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:30 a. m. to 10:45 a. m. and from 3 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

February 24 holds out no very bright prospects. On the other hand, there is not much reason to worry, if you keep cool and collected. Overtures may be made you of a dazzling character. These should be carefully considered and no definite action taken until the following day.

Children born on this February 24 will be pliant and amenable. They will never develop into strong, forceful characters. They will always need stimulating companionship, and some one on whom to lean, if not to depend. Their dispositions will be extremely affectionate.

If you were born on a February 24 you possess a remarkable brain and a naturally sweet, yet frank, nature. Even in your youth, you easily outstripped your rivals, without, apparently, making any particular effort to do so. Nature has been more than generous to you, and you can assimilate learning much quicker and more thoroughly than the average person. If, allied to this gift you possessed the virtues of ambition and perseverance, you could easily make your mark in the world.

You always chose in life the path of least resistance. You rarely put up a fight, so long as your daily routine and your ease and comfort are not disturbed. You could easily be a champion. You prefer, however, the role of "a-could-be-but-never-is." You prefer the soft spots of life, and always dodge the hard ones. So long as you are assured of a comfortable life, you are willing to let who will be great.

Your inherent indolence, your indifference to material success, is all forgiven you because of the great charm of your personality. Your mannerisms are natural. Your disposition is sweet. No one has ever heard you say an unkind word, even of those who have succeeded, where you have failed. Your home life promises to be replete with happiness and contentment.

Successful people born February 24:

George Fred Handel, musical composer.

Charles Lamb, essayist.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

DEAR Frances McDonald: Solve this enigma for me. Five years ago I was a happy wife helping along my husband who was a fine struggling young physician. We had been married ten years and never a cloud in our lives. Then came the other woman. Unable to face me with the facts he "disappeared." So did she. You can imagine my sufferings and anxieties. Then came the truth. He wrote me of his wish to marry her. I arranged a meeting and because of my great love for him permitted a divorce. They married one week later. And on their honeymoon he was taken suddenly violently ill with intestinal trouble and died within 24 hours. I did not know until after he was laid to rest. Now there are two things that trouble me. First my reaction to the news. Remember I did truly love this man with my whole heart. However, with the news that he was dead came a great lifting of sorrow from my heart. How could I feel that way? My heart died with the news—and five years after—is still dead. But grief was lifted. Does it mean that I would rather my loved were dead than happy without me? What sort of woman would that make me? Please answer frankly. That is what I want.

And now the second question. When he died his mother came to see me. She said in her agony of suffering: "She took him from you and God took him from her." Do you believe there is anything to that thought? I do believe that there are eternal laws always at work. Do you believe that? Could it have been God's way of working out justice? Do comment, if only briefly, for I want to know.

D. C.

Taking the first question first, your reaction, while not indicative of the highest form of love was pretty close to normal. If the truth were told most of us could better bear the death of a loved one than the loss of his love to another. Nine thousand women will cry out their denial of this. But we are talking truth, not sentiment. And truth is a repulsive thing. So your way of loving makes you out the average woman.

The second question, like the first, is really one of philosophy. For myself, it would be very hard for me to picture a Divine Being lurking around planning ways to hurt people. I would be inclined to class such a being with the adult who could enjoy terrifying little children. So the idea that a man would be stricken by divine wrath because he had failed to attain a proper degree of perfection or because he had evidenced any given degree of human weakness would not at all fit my personal picture of a Supreme Understanding.

Truth to tell, it has always seemed to me that God was constantly being dragged into things with which he had no hand whatsoever. And in being so involved Divinity has been made to appear most inconsistent and arbitrary. If for instance, every divorced man would be stricken with sudden death on his honeymoon we might, while doubting the mercy and the generosity of such retribution, at least admit its consistency since it was the inevitable and invariable law. But for one in one million it would seem discrimination at least.

When we humans with our little mean souls and little shriveled hearts learn to blame ourselves for what happens to us we will be nearer a solution of our doubts. We are a mangy lot. And we come pretty close to rejoicing in the misfortune of our enemies. And to ease our consciences we call their misfortune the hand of God. We should hide our heads in shame for our pettiness, and be thankful that this wrathful Spirit we are forever quoting has seen fit to ignore the dastardly charges we have dared to lay at His door. And that is about as far as my personal philosophy has gone. But I hope it has answered your question.

Monument Body Holds 98th Session

Society Reelects Officers After Luncheon Given at Metropolitan Club.

The historic Washington National Monument Society, whose organization in 1833 resulted in opening construction on the Washington Monument fifteen years later, yesterday held its ninety-eighth meeting at the Metropolitan Club.

President Hoover is ex-officio president of the society. The group yesterday reelected its present officers, Justice Van Devanter, first vice president; William R. Harr, secretary, and Theodore W. Noyes, treasurer. Justice Van Devanter presided at a short business meeting which preceded a luncheon.

The society was authorized by Congress in 1848 to erect a monument to Washington's memory. The President of the United States and the board of managers of the society chose the site, a few hundred feet southeast of the point indicated in L'Enfant's plan as a location for an equestrian statue of Washington. The corner stone was laid July 4, 1848.

Socialist Party Chiefs To Meet Here Saturday

Miss Terrett Wed to Mr. S. L. Earle.

Miss Ruth L. Terrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Terrett, became the bride of Mr. Sherod L. Earle, of Hampton, Va., on Saturday evening at Trinity Episcopal Church, the ceremony taking place at 8 o'clock. Spring flowers, combined with palms and ferns, decorated the church. The Rev. J. L. Cole performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of bridal satin trimmed with pearls and made on princess lines. Her veil was of Princess Anne lace and fell from a cap which was held in place by orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Arthur C. Parsons was her sister's matron of honor and only attendant. Flesh color lace flecked with sequins fashioned her gown and she wore shoes and a tulle hat to match. Her bouquet was of pink roses.

Mr. S. A. Geurriere, of Boston, Mass., was best man, and the ushers included Mr. Bayliss T. Earle, Mr. Charles Cooke, Mr. Elbert Judson and Mr. S. M. Earle.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. Earle and his bride left for a trip through the South. Mrs. Earle wearing a rust color sports dress with a tan coat and hat. They will be at home after March 15 in Hampton, Va.

Washington is showing unusual interest in the event and a gala evening is promised.

All of the scenes used as back drops for the various monologues and dialogues were painted by Olin Dows, son of Mrs. Tracy Dows.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT seems almost incomprehensible, even after a minute scrutiny of "Inspiration," Gene Markey's modernized but basically unchanged version of Daudet's "Sappho," in which Greta Garbo is appearing currently on the Columbia screen, that this is the story that shocked the late Victorians to the point of banning the play from the stage in some cities by reason of its daring, suggestiveness and utter indifference to the sacred institution of matrimony.

As a present-day exhibition of audacity it is as denatured as Mr. Volstead's idea of good beer. To be aure, it deals wholly with such questionable matters as deliberate mesalliances, luxurious liaisons and the brazen flaunting of those moral precepts most cherished by society, but it executes its indelicacies so innocuously that compared with many modern plays, and most of the modern novels, the creaky old story becomes almost prim.

The trouble seems to be that M. Daudet was naughty before his time. Looked upon as no less than a demoralizing hellion in the 80s and 90s, he would today find his script altogether too tame to interest the publishers of such frank expositions of the peculiar manifestations of twentieth century sex as "A Farewell to Arms," "Cakes and Ale," "Imperial Palace," "Back Streets" or almost any other contemporaneous best-seller you may care to name.

The staircase episode, the incident most objected to in "Sappho," is stripped of all significance in "Inspiration." Instead of carrying Yvonne up the entire length of the long flight, Andre bears her only the last few steps, after she has become exhausted by the long climb. In the original play the increasing burden that she became to her young lover from the country as they neared the top, and his growing weariness, were made symbolic of the whole course of their impassioned association. There is no point to it in the picture.

And certainly there is no point in casting Robert Montgomery opposite Greta Garbo. It seems to me that an ideal selection for the part of Andre would have been Kent Douglas, who appeared opposite Joan Crawford in "Paid," the dialogue screen version of "Within the Law," or, as a second choice, Raymond Hackett, whom Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer cast so effectively with Norma Shearer in "The Trial of Mary Dugan." Both possess youthfulness and intensity where Mr. Montgomery seems to have nothing more warming than chills and goose pimples!

Lest there be those who reach a hasty conclusion that the erroneous rumors that her engagement at the Earle was drawing to a close may have caused her hair to turn suddenly white, it should be speedily said that that is a white wig Maxine Doyle is wearing this week, as part of a Martha Washington colonial costume in honor of Washington's birthday. The costume, by the way, is particularly becoming and is eliciting more than the usual enthusiasm for its wearer from the cash customers.

Speaking of the Earle, the theater yesterday afternoon entertained a detachment of some 90-odd marines, up from Quantico for the military mass at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

And speaking of Washington's birthday, all of the downtown picture houses reaped the customary holiday harvest, business almost getting out of hand from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until the last night show was well under way.

The Earle stole a march on its competitors by putting on an extra Sunday midnight performance that attracted a profitable, but not a capacity, audience. The Palace, with an extra de luxe performance yesterday, and the Fox—third of the so-called "presentation" houses—on its regular schedule, accounted for enough thousands, all on top of a fat week-end, to make everybody satisfied that "happy days are here again."

Maybe you would care to know that:

After several friendly conferences on the matter, preparations are about completed for the ceremony of burying the hatchet by Harry M. Warner, representing Warner Brothers, and Adolph Zukor, representing Paramount-Publix, the latter agreeing to pay the former $1,200,000 rentals, alleged to be due for Warner product played in Publix houses, and the former agreeing to stop raiding the Paramount forces for screen talent . . . Lew Cody and Laura La Plante have been signed to play opposite each other in a new Al Christie feature length comedy, "Meet the Wife" . . . The custom of loaning contract stars to other companies, to cut down overhead and sometimes increase profits, is to be abandoned by all the major producing companies, the players hereafter to appear only in pictures made by the firms with which they are signed . . . Tallulah Bankhead, having finished her first assignment at Paramount's Eastern studio at Astoria, L. I., is to spend a three weeks' vacation giving New York the double o . . . Rex Ingram is to direct three pictures for Paramount, all to be made in France . . . Charles "Buddy" Rogers will no longer be starred by Paramount, but will be cast in featured parts . . . George Ade is adapting "Cure for the Blues" to the screen as Will Rogers' next vehicle for Fox.

There won't be another week with two Sundays in it until the last of May!

MARDI GRAS THRONGS CROWN OLD GOLD KING

NEW ORLEANS CARNIVAL CROWDS GIVE OLD GOLD BIG VOTE

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Himself
Creator of "Believe It or Not"

Mardi Gras week . . . in New Orleans! Masked beauty. Masked laughter. What a setting, said I, for my black-masked cigarette test!

Off I went. With my big black box. To pass out the four leading brands of cigarettes, names concealed behind black masks.

"Taste 'em folks . . . all of 'em," said I. "Hand back the one you like best. The one that's kindest and smoothest to your throat!"

They did. I unmasked their choices. And a new King was crowned.

OLD GOLD clicked! With a total of 440 votes to 286 for Brand X, 264 for Brand Y, and 251 for Brand Z.

Which only goes to show that you can't hide OLD GOLD'S better tobaccos, nor its superior throat ease.

INVESTMENT TRUST REGULATION URGED

Control of Utilities Engaged in Interstate Activity Asked by Ripley.

(Associated Press.)

Rigid governmental regulation of investment trusts and public utilities engaged in interstate commerce was urged yesterday by Prof. William Z. Ripley, of Harvard University.

The author of railroad consolidation proposals told the Senate banking investigating committee that millions of American investors of small sums were having their funds tied up in the hands of a "very limited number" of people through the operation of investment trusts.

He warned of danger in this practice, unless the Government assumed control and required "full publicity and an honest accounting of the financing."

Prof. Ripley conceded his proposal involved a constitutional question but said the line should be drawn by the courts to determine which companies were engaged in interstate business.

He said one of the "cardinal weaknesses" of the investment trust plan resulted from a great temptation to use the trust as a waste basket, in which to place something which can not otherwise be put in the hands of the public successfully.

Marcus Nadler, associate professor at New York University, and research director of the Institute of International Finance, told the committee a law holding directors primarily responsible for failures of banks would result in "more conservative banking."

He blamed lack of responsibility of officers and absence of bank liquidity, due to excessive loans on securities and mortgages and less liquid investments, for many of the closings in recent years.

To increase the liquidity of small banks, including savings institutions, he urged establishment of a central mortgage bank for urban real estate which "could take mortgages held by banks, and on the basis of this, issue its own bonds."

This, he said, would create a ready market for urban mortgages and in times of stress enable the banks, commercial as well as savings, to convert their mortgages into cash.

Policeman Helps Man He Arrested

Charity Is Blended With Duty as Family Is Found Destitute.

Policeman R. L. Hinton, of the Third Precinct, did his duty Sunday night when he arrested William Tweedy, 30-year-old Negro. Yesterday, however, he proved a good Samaritan and obtained the man's release.

Tweedy was charged with stealing three baskets of coal from the Georgetown plant of the Washington Gas Light Co. Hinton, investigating a report, followed a trail of coal to Tweedy's home, where, he says, he found the Negro in the act of making a fire for his wife and three shivering children.

Hinton seized the coal and Tweedy and booked him on a petit larceny charge. Later the man's wife obtained his release, explaining she had borrowed $10 from a freind for collateral.

Yesterday morning Hinton talked to Gas company officials, who, after learning the facts, agreed not to prosecute. Hinton then went to Police Court and received from Assistant United States Attorney John R. Fitzpatrick an order for the return of the collateral.

ONE KILLED, DOZENS HURT IN GANG FIRING

Rivals in New York Shoot It Out in Dance Hall; 60 Are Held.

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A Brooklyn "dime-a-dance" palace, in which 500 couples swayed to jazz music, was thrown into wild turmoil today as gangsters banged out the lights and began shooting.

When it was all over one man was found shot to death, another probably mortally wounded and a countless number bruised.

Members of the rival Hooligans and Hudson Avenue Boys were present, detectives believed. The orchestra was playing "You're Driving Me Crazy," when a blonde girl, dancing with a swarthy youth, was told by another youth to go home. The girl and her partner ignored the command. A few moments later the lights went out and guns began to pop.

Members of the orchestra threw themselves to the floor, women fainted, men streamed out of the place with clothing torn and faces bleeding. Some one blew a siren on the roof. Two policemen came running. They said they saw Michael Maselli, 26, reach for his pocket. They shot him twice in the abdomen, wounding him critically.

Charles Barnes, 24-year-old chauffeur, was carried out by friends, followed by a weeping girl, who implored him to speak to her. He died on the way to a hospital.

The floor was strewn with hats, vanity cases, coats, slippers, guns and blackjacks. Sixty persons, including several girls, were then taken to a police station for questioning. One of the prisoners was described as Dominick Ferrerre, alleged to belong to one of the gangs. Police were told he had argued with Barnes about a dance contest promoted by the "Happy-Go-Lucky Three."

Income Tax Facts

Where an automobile is used solely for pleasure, allowable deductions for maintenance and operation in an income-tax return are limited. There may be deducted the cost of the operator's permit, license fees, State or local taxes imposed on ownership of the car (personal property tax), and in certain States and the District of Columbia the gasoline tax, where such tax is imposed by law on the consumer rather than the dealer. Following is a list of the States where the tax is deductible by the consumer:

Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

In States where the tax is imposed on the distributor and not the consumer, the distributor may deduct the tax, provided it is not added to or made a part of his business expenses.

If a car is used for both business and pleasure, the deductible expenses should be computed accordingly. For example, if the total expenses of operation and maintenance, plus depreciation, for the taxable year amounted to $800, the car having been used three-fourths of the time for business and the balance for pleasure, the allowable deduction would be $600.

Latin America Resents Monroe Doctrine, Claim

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—John Barrett, chairman of the international Pan-American committee, in a speech today before the Connecticut Sons of the American Republics, said Latin-American countries are anxious to have the Monroe Doctrine declared obsolete. He also described these countries as desirous that the United States stop patronizing them.

Barrett said he based his conclusions on a large number of opinions he had received from Latin-American statesmen.

MINISTER ARRESTED ON DRY LAW CHARGE

Star Witness in Murder Trial of Mrs. Gatlin Gives Bond.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Feb. 23.—Rev. Thomas W. Pardue, who, in February, 1928, played a conspicuous part in the trial of Mrs. Alma Petty Gatlin, charged with the murder of her father at Wentworth, N. C., near here, has been arrested at Winston-Salem, N. C., charged with violating the State prohibition law.

Police raided his home and found nine gallons of liquor under the house, only half of which, however, is occupied by the minister.

While the search was in progress, police alleged, the minister drove up with his automobile in which a case of empty pint bottles was found. In his rooms were found two 5-gallon cans, they said. Mr. Pardue denied responsibility for the liquor discovered under the house and explained that the cans found in his rooms were used for kerosene. He was arrested and gave bond of $1,000.

Mr. Pardue, in testifying against Mrs. Gatlin, said that while he was holding a revival at Reidsville she became a convert and confessed to him that she had slain her father, Smith Petty. He testified that he then told the police, who found the father's remains buried in the basement of the Petty home. The question of "privilege" of a religious confession was raised during the trial. Mrs. Petty was acquitted by the jury.

Metropolitan policyholders—including about one-fifth of the total populations of United States and Canada—have built up their reserves from millions into billions.

THE financial story below is a record of achievement by men and women who are planning to avert want or to build estates. You may admire their steadfastness of purpose last year under handicaps which tested courage.

These people—policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company—are building for their future. They would like to know what the future holds in store for them and for the country as a whole.

Let them, and other citizens, examine any chart of our country's unparalleled prosperity over the past hundred years. It appears, not merely as a jagged line, but as a series of towering steps which rise steadily onward and upward.

It is heartening now to recall that, after each depression, our country has always gone forward to greater heights of prosperity and better, sounder standards of living. Today this country has more riches and better facilities than ever before with which to commence her next great period of development.

A review of the financial history of the United States since it was founded in 1783 should turn any pessimist into an optimist.

The Metropolitan will gladly mail, free, a booklet, "The Development of Prosperity in America", telling of past ups and downs—and ups again—and how soon the "ups" followed.

Society Reelects Officers After Luncheon Given at Metropolitan Club.

The historic Washington National Monument Society, whose organization in 1833 resulted in opening construction on the Washington Monument fifteen years later, yesterday held its ninety-eighth meeting at the Metropolitan Club.

President Hoover is ex-officio president of the society. The group yesterday reelected its present officers, Justice Van Devanter, first vice president; William R. Harr, secretary, and Theodore W. Noyes, treasurer. Justice Van Devanter presided at a short business meeting which preceded a luncheon.

The society was authorized by Congress in 1848 to erect a monument to Washington's memory. The President of the United States and the board of managers of the society chose the site, a few hundred feet southeast of the point indicated in L'Enfant's plan as a location for an equestrian statue of Washington. The corner stone was laid July 4, 1848.

Berger National Foundation at a dinner at the National Press Club. The Rev. Miss Terrett Wed to Mr. S. L. Earle.

Miss Ruth L. Terrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Terrett, became the bride of Mr. Sherod L. Earle, of Hampton, Va., on Saturday evening at Trinity Episcopal Church, the ceremony taking place at 8 o'clock. Spring flowers, combined with palms and ferns, decorated the church. The Rev. J. L. Cole performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of bridal satin trimmed with pearls and made on princess lines. Her veil was of Princess Anne lace and fell from a cap which was held in place by orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and lillies of the valley.

Mrs. Arthur C. Parsons was her sister's matron of honor and only attendant. Flesh color lace flecked with sequins fashioned her gown and she wore shoes and a tulle hat to match. Her bouquet was of pink roses.

Mr. S. A. Geurriere, of Boston, Mass., was best man, and the ushers included Mr. Bayliss T. Earle, Mr. Charles Cooke, Mr. Elbert Judson and Mr. S. M. Earle.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. Earle and his bride left for a trip through the South, Mrs. Earle wearing a rust color sports dress with a tan coat and hat. They will be at home after March 15 in Hampton, Va.

Miss Evelyn Foster entertained at a musicale tea Saturday for her students. At the tea tables were Miss Jane Baker, assisted by Miss Helen Krouse, Miss Elizabeth Schimmer. Miss Foster was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. H. A. Foster and Mrs. H. E. Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Emery, who have been in California for some time, are at the Hotel Fairmont in San Francisco.

Mrs. Vincent Astor To Visit in Capital.

Mrs. Vincent Astor will arrive in Washington for the week-end from her winter home in Georgia and will be the guest of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, coming especially for the debut of Ethel Borden, in "Let's Pretend," at the Belasco next Sunday evening.

Miss Borden, daughter of Mrs. Harriman, will co-star with Viola Tree, daughter of Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, in a repertoire of dialogues. Mr. Merton Powell, famous pianist, will also appear on the program.

Washington is showing unusual interest in the event and a gala evening is promised.

All of the scenes used as back drops for the various monologues and dialogues were painted by Olin Dows, son of Mrs. Tracy Dows.

The National Woman's Country Club was the holiday mecca yesterday for several luncheon parties. Among the hostesses who entertained at luncheon there were Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, president of the club; Mrs. Harry Pickney Huse, Mrs. Ogilvie Shumate and Mrs. G. B. Trible.

Those who attended the luncheon included Mrs. John Loomis Chamberlain, Mrs. Sidney Andrews, Mrs. John Freeman, Mrs. Eric Swenson, Mrs. George S. Becker, Mrs. William Floyd Crosby, Mrs. P. Lee Phillips, Mrs. Ridley McLean and Mrs. Price Whitaker.

After the luncheon Mr. N. Coridon Hanks, blind author, lecturer and philosopher, discussed "The Philosophy of Life."

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Shaffer and Mr. Charles Wilfrid Smith was held yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Shaffer. Only the immediate families were present.

The Rev. R. P. Scherrer, of the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church, officiated. Mrs. Iva May Williams was matron of honor and Mr. Harold Smith, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride is prominently identified with Eastern Star activities and Mr. Smith is a member of the choir at the Church of the Covenant.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

It seems almost incomprehensible, even after a minute scrutiny of "Inspiration," Gene Markey's modernized but basically unchanged version of Daudet's "Sappho," in which Greta Garbo is appearing currently on the Columbia screen, that this is the story that shocked the late Victorians to the point of banning the play from the stage in some cities by reason of its daring, suggestiveness and utter indifference to the sacred institution of matrimony.

As a present-day exhibition of audacity it is as denatured as Mr. Volstead's idea of good beer. To be sure, it deals wholly with such questionable matters as deliberate mesalliances, luxurious liaisons and the brazen flaunting of those moral precepts most cherished by society, but it executes its indelicacies so innocuously that compared with many modern plays, and most of the modern novels, the creaky old story becomes almost prim.

The trouble seems to be that M. Daudet was naughty before his time. Looked upon as no less than a demoralizing hellion in the 80s and 90s, he would today find his script altogether too tame to interest the publishers of such frank expositions of the peculiar manifestations of twentieth century sex as "A Farewell to Arms," "Cakes and Ale," "Imperial Palace," "Back Streets" or almost any other contemporaneous best-seller you may care to name.

The staircase episode, the incident most objected to in "Sappho," is stripped of all significance in "Inspiration." Instead of carrying Yvonne up the entire length of the long flight, Andre bears her only the last few steps, after she has become exhausted by the long climb. In the original play the increasing burden that she became to her young lover from the country as they neared the top, and his growing weariness, were made symbolic of the whole course of their impassioned association. There is no point to it in the picture.

And certainly there is no point in casting Robert Montgomery opposite Greta Garbo. It seems to me that an ideal selection for the part of Andre would have been Kent Douglas, who appeared opposite Joan Crawford in "Paid," the dialogue screen version of "Within the Law," or, as a second choice, Raymond Hackett, whom Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer cast so effectively with Norma Shearer in "The Trial of Mary Dugan." Both possess youthfulness and intensity where Mr. Montgomery seems to have nothing more warming than chills and goose pimples!

Lest there be those who reach a hasty conclusion that the erroneous rumors that her engagement at the Earle was drawing to a close may have caused her hair to turn suddenly white, it should be speedily said that that is a white wig Maxine Doyle is wearing this week, as part of a Martha Washington colonial costume in honor of Washington's birthday. The costume, by the way, is particularly becoming and is eliciting more than the usual enthusiasm for its wearer from the cash customers.

Speaking of the Earle, the theater yesterday afternoon entertained a detachment of some 90-odd marines, up from Quantico for the military mass at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

And speaking of Washington's birthday, all of the downtown picture houses reaped the customary holiday harvest, business almost getting out of hand from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until the last night show was well under way.

The Earle stole a march on its competitors by putting on an extra Sunday midnight performance that attracted a profitable, but not a capacity, audience. The Palace, with an extra de luxe performance yesterday, and the Fox—third of the so-called "presentation" houses—on its regular schedule, accounted for enough thousands, all on top of a fat week-end, to make everybody satisfied that "happy days are here again."

Maybe you would care to know that:

After several friendly conferences on the matter, preparations are about completed for the ceremony of burying the hatchet by Harry M. Warner, representing Warner Brothers, and Adolph Zukor, representing Paramount-Publix, the latter agreeing to pay the former $1,200,000 rentals, alleged to be due for Warner product played in Publix houses, and the former agreeing to stop raiding the Paramount forces for screen talent . . . Lew Cody and Laura La Plante have been signed to play opposite each other in a new Al Christie feature length comedy, "Meet the Wife" . . . The custom of loaning contract stars to other companies, to cut down overhead and sometimes increase profits, is to be abandoned by all the major producing companies, the players hereafter to appear only in pictures made by the firms with which they are signed . . . Tallulah Bankhead, having finished her first assignment at Paramount's Eastern studio at Astoria, L. I., is to spend a three weeks' vacation giving New York the double o . . . Rex Ingram is to direct three pictures for Paramount, all to be made in France . . . Charles "Buddy" Rogers will no longer be starred by Paramount, but will be cast in featured parts . . . George Ade is adapting "Cure for the Blues" to the screen as Will Rogers' next vehicle for Fox.

There won't be another week with two Sundays in it until the last of May!

MARDI GRAS THRONGS CROWN OLD GOLD KING

NEW ORLEANS CARNIVAL CROWDS GIVE OLD GOLD BIG VOTE

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Himself
Creator of "Believe It or Not"

Mardi Gras week . . . in New Orleans! Masked beauty. Masked laughter. What a setting, said I, for my black-masked cigarette test!

Off I went. With my big black box. To pass out the four leading brands of cigarettes, names concealed behind black masks.

"Taste 'em folks . . . all of 'em," said I. "Hand back the one you like best. The one that's kindest and smoothest to your throat!"

They did. I unmasked their choices. And a new King was crowned.

OLD GOLD clicked! With a total of 440 votes to 286 for Brand X, 264 for Brand Y, and 251 for Brand Z.

Which only goes to show that you can't hide OLD GOLD'S better tobaccos, nor its superior throat ease.

INVESTMENT TRUST REGULATION URGED

Control of Utilities Engaged in Interstate Activity Asked by Ripley.

(Associated Press.)

Rigid governmental regulation of investment trusts and public utilities engaged in interstate commerce was urged yesterday by Prof. William Z. Ripley, of Harvard University.

The author of railroad consolidation proposals told the Senate banking investigating committee that millions of American investors of small sums were having their funds tied up in the hands of a "very limited number" of people through the operation of investment trusts.

He warned of danger in this practice, unless the Government assumed control and required "full publicity and an honest accounting of the financing."

Prof. Ripley conceded his proposal involved a constitutional question but said the line should be drawn by the courts to determine which companies were engaged in interstate business.

He said one of the "cardinal weaknesses" of the investment trust plan resulted from a great temptation to use the trust as a waste basket, in which to place something which can not otherwise be put in the hands of the public successfully.

Marcus Nadler, associate professor at New York University, and research director of the Institute of International Finance, told the committee a law holding directors primarily responsible for failures of banks would result in "more conservative banking."

He blamed lack of responsibility of officers and absence of bank liquidity, due to excessive loans on securities and mortgages and less liquid investments, for many of the closings in recent years.

To increase the liquidity of small banks, including savings institutions, he urged establishment of a central mortgage bank for urban real estate which "could take mortgages held by banks, and on the basis of this, issue its own bonds."

This, he said, would create a ready market for urban mortgages and in times of stress enable the banks, commercial as well as savings, to convert their mortgages into cash.

Policeman Helps Man He Arrested

Charity Is Blended With Duty as Family Is Found Destitute.

Policeman R. L. Hinton, of the Third Precinct, did his duty Sunday night when he arrested William Tweedy, 30-year-old Negro. Yesterday, however, he proved a good Samaritan and obtained the man's release.

Tweedy was charged with stealing three baskets of coal from the Georgetown plant of the Washington Gas Light Co. Hinton, investigating a report, followed a trail of coal to Tweedy's home, where, he says, he found the Negro in the act of making a fire for his wife and three shivering children.

Hinton seized the coal and Tweedy and booked him on a petit larceny charge. Later the man's wife obtained his release, explaining she had borrowed $10 from a freind for collateral.

Yesterday morning Hinton talked to Gas company officials, who, after learning the facts, agreed not to prosecute. Hinton then went to Police Court and received from Assistant United States Attorney John R. Fitzpatrick an order for the return of the collateral.

ONE KILLED, DOZENS HURT IN GANG FIRING

Rivals in New York Shoot It Out in Dance Hall; 60 Are Held.

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A Brooklyn "dime-a-dance" palace, in which 500 couples swayed to jazz music, was thrown into wild turmoil today as gangsters banged out the lights and began shooting.

When it was all over one man was found shot to death, another probably mortally wounded and a countless number bruised.

Members of the rival Hooligans and Hudson Avenue Boys were present, detectives believed. The orchestra was playing "You're Driving Me Crazy," when a blonde girl, dancing with a swarthy youth, was told by another youth to go home. The girl and her partner ignored the command. A few moments later the lights went out and guns began to pop.

Members of the orchestra threw themselves to the floor, women fainted, men streamed out of the place with clothing torn and faces bleeding. Some one blew a siren on the roof. Two policemen came running. They said they saw Michael Maselli, 26, reach for his pocket. They shot him twice in the abdomen, wounding him critically.

Charles Barnes, 24-year-old chauffeur, was carried out by friends, followed by a weeping girl, who implored him to speak to her. He died on the way to a hospital.

The floor was strewn with hats, vanity cases, coats, slippers, guns and blackjacks. Sixty persons, including several girls, were then taken to a police station for questioning. One of the prisoners was described as Dominick Ferrerre, alleged to belong to one of the gangs. Police were told he had argued with Barnes about a dance contest promoted by the "Happy-Go-Lucky Three."

Income Tax Facts

Where an automobile is used solely for pleasure, allowable deductions for maintenance and operation in an income-tax return are limited. There may be deducted the cost of the operator's permit, license fees, State or local taxes imposed on ownership of the car (personal property tax), and in certain States and the District of Columbia the gasoline tax, where such tax is imposed by law on the consumer rather than the dealer. Following is a list of the States where the tax is deductible by the consumer:

Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

In States where the tax is imposed on the distributor and not the consumer, the distributor may deduct the tax, provided it is not added to or made a part of his business expenses.

If a car is used for both business and pleasure, the deductible expenses should be computed accordingly. For example, if the total expenses of operation and maintenance, plus depreciation, for the taxable year amounted to $880, the car having been used three-fourths of the time for business and the balance for pleasure, the allowable deduction would be $600.

Latin America Resents Monroe Doctrine, Claim

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—John Barrett, chairman of the international Pan-American committee, in a speech today before the Connecticut Sons of the American Revolution, said Latin-American countries are anxious to have the Monroe Doctrine declared obsolete. He also described these countries as desirous that the United States stop patronizing them.

Barrett said he based his conclusions on a large number of opinions he had received from Latin-American statesmen.

MINISTER ARRESTED ON DRY LAW CHARGE

Star Witness in Murder Trial of Mrs. Gatlin Gives Bond.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Feb. 23.—Rev. Thomas W. Pardue, who, in February, 1928, played a conspicuous part in the trial of Mrs. Alma Petty Gatlin, charged with the murder of her father at Wentworth, N. C., near here, has been arrested at Winston-Salem, N. C., charged with violating the State prohibition law.

Police raided his home and found nine gallons of liquor under the house, only half of which, however, is occupied by the minister.

While the search was in progress, police alleged, the minister drove up with his automobile in which a case of empty pint bottles was found. In his rooms were found two 5-gallon cans, they said. Mr. Pardue denied responsibility for the liquor discovered under the house and explained that the cans found in his rooms were used for kerosene. He was arrested and gave bond of $1,000.

Mr. Pardue, in testifying against Mrs. Gatlin, said that while he was holding a revival at Reidsville she became a convert and confessed to him that she had slain her father, Smith Petty. He testified that he then told the police, who found the father's remains buried in the basement of the Petty home. The question of "privilege" of a religious confession was raised during the trial. Mrs. Petty was acquitted by the jury.

Insured and Assured

Metropolitan policyholders—including about one-fifth of the total populations of United States and Canada—have built up their reserves from millions into billions.

THE financial story below is a record of achievement by men and women who are planning to avert want or to build estates. You may admire their steadfastness of purpose last year under handicaps which tested courage.

These people—policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company—are building for their future. They would like to know what the future holds in store for them and for the country as a whole.

Let them, and other citizens, examine any chart of our country's unparalleled prosperity over the past hundred years. It appears, not merely as a jagged line, but as a series of towering steps which rise steadily onward and upward.

It is heartening now to recall that, after each depression, our country has always gone forward to greater heights of prosperity and better, sounder standards of living. Today this country has more riches and better facilities than ever before with which to commence her next great period of development.

A review of the financial history of the United States since it was founded in 1783 should turn any pessimist into an optimist.

The Metropolitan will gladly mail, free, a booklet, "The Development of Prosperity in America", telling of past ups and downs—and ups again—and how soon the "ups" followed.

FEBRUARY 24, 1906.

Two street car accidents in which 3 persons were killed and 40 injured, occurred in Pittsburgh today.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, jr., are being detained by the authorities of Pontedera, Italy, near Rome, as the result of the running down of a boy by their automobile. They were roughly handled by a mob which gathered after the accident. The boy was not badly injured.

Friends were becoming alarmed at the condition of King Edward's health, and his medical advisors are very worried, it was said from London by cable.

Knives and revolvers played an exciting part in the Tennessee State Republican convention in session at Jonesboro. Four furious fights are said to have occurred.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

TREATING HAND WOUNDS.

IN the treatment of wounds of the hands and feet, Dr. H. W. Orr follows a plan that differs from the one now in general use but which he has used successfully in a large number of cases for more than five years. Wounds of the hands and feet are dangerous because so frequently the wounded member is deformed, useless and too tender for work. Much of this plan can be carried out only by physicians, but laymen should know about it, since, in the last analysis, they must pass on what the physician does.

Dr. Orr does not lance or open up infected hands or feet until one of two reasons for doing so are present. If there is an abscess coming to a head he drains it. If there is infection of the bone he not only drains but he extends his opening into the center of the bone. Such bone infection are usually in the bone marrow and an incision which does not go to the bone marrow does not drain properly. Otherwise, according to this plan, the hand or foot is wrapped well for protection and put in a splint for rest. This splint should be long enough to keep all nearby joints, muscles and tendons at rest. When the suppuration is localized, or, in other words, as the pus comes to a head, he opens it up, puts in a vaseline gauze drain, covers with a dry dressing and then with a splint. After that the injured member is left alone. No daily washings and dressings, no daily application of fresh gauze; just protected, splinted, and left alone. To change dressings is to increase the danger of infection or further infection.

He follows the same method of treating compound fractures. Just drainage, a protective dressing, and splinting and, after that, just as little dressing and refixing as conditions will allow of. He thinks free cutting and much changing of dressings will accomplish no good purpose and may do harm. If the symptoms show that the infection has gone into the bone incision to the center thereof must be quickly done.

WHAT PLEURITIS IS.

Mrs. S. H. B. writes:

1. What is pleuritis?
2. What causes it to return?
3. Is it dangerous?

REPLY.

1. Inflammation of the pleura. The common name is pleurisy.
2. Reinfaction or incomplete cure of the infection. The pleura is apt to be infected from a tubercular lung or a pneumonia lung. Most cases of so-called returning pleurisy are really rheumatism of the chest wall or neuralgia of the chest wall nerves.
3. It often is.

FOODS FOR ANEMIA.

Mrs. H. G. writes:

1. What food is good for a 10-year-old girl with anemia?
2. Does anemia cause fits?
3. What can stop those spells like convulsions and fits?

REPLY.

1. Liver, tripe, heart, steak, egg yellow, green and other colored vegetables.
2. No.
3. Have a physician decide whether your child has epilepsy and what needs to be done.

Vance Would Train With Dodgers

Holdout Asks Permission to Work at Clearwater.

New Infield Exhibits Together for First Time in Camp.

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A large, middle-aged gentleman with red hair and nose, known to baseball fandom as Dazzy Vance, arrived in Clearwater late today and asked Uncle Wilbert Robinson for permission to work out with his ambitious Dodgers.

Mr. Vance has not yet signed his contract for the forthcoming season, and there is an unwritten law or something in baseball that prevents an unsigned player working with his own or any other club.

Mr. Vance is not a malignant holdout. His is a very mild case, and he seems quite pleasant and happy about it. He hasn't quite reached an agreement with the club on the matter of salary, but seems to feel that it will be no time at all until he does, and that there is nothing to prevent him figuring on winning 30 ball games this year.

1931 Model Infield Works Out.

The 1931 model Dodgers' infield worked together for the first time and took part, en toto, in the first drill of the year. They were all there. Bissonette at first, Lafayette Fresco (Chick) Thompson, Glenn Wright and Wallace Gilbert in the order named and they looked very bright and prosperous. Also they banged that ball around the infield in such manner as to cause your Uncle Wilbert to bestir himself from the bench and sputter warnings against such pa...ture energy.

Mr. Pea Ridge Day, the celebrated Arkansas hog caller, showed up in the morning and went to work—pitching, not calling hogs. R. Day is a very large man with one of the weddest faces that ever adorned human beneath a peaked cap, likewise a girth that caused Uncle Robbie some dismay and no little fear that it might even outmatch his own. Mr. Day admits that he is slightly overweight, but then the hog-calling business demands a chest that is not only large around, but deep, up and down, so he says, and it really is mostly muscle, tonsil muscle, probably.

Yale Not to Adopt Rockne Grid System

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Yale's Football Team will continue to play traditional Yale football with variations next season as heretofore, Head Coach Mal Stevens said today. "There is no secret as to what system play we will use," the Eli mentor said, and added that Yale most emphatically would not throw over the present order of things to adopt the "Knute Rockne" or "Notre Dame" style of attack, as many have predicted.

In detail the Eli Coach pointed out that Yale would not use the shift, which is considered characteristic of systems like that used by Notre Dame teams. He said, however, that Yale would use the balanced line—this being one deviation from Yale's customary plan of battle. This announcement, which came in answer to questions concerning the plans for the 1931 season, was an unexpected one.

ELIZABETH BOLLA, 5-year-old filly owned by Mrs. Charles Holland, of New Orleans, has her own ideas as to what a race horse should and should not eat. Elizabeth simply refuses to run on ordinary horse feed, but since she has been given full liberty in choosing her menu she has won 20 races out of 49 starts. Lately she has even become particular about what she drinks and some times nothing but coca cola will satisfy her.

Harold T. Power, of Oakland, Calif., was one of those present when the huge sugar pine tree refused to fall after being "cut down." Usually, tree cutters can determine the exact spot on which a tree is going to fall, but this tree in question couldn't be toppled in any direction—even with wedges. Finally, the cutters give up the task and left the big tree standing. Two days later it was blown over by a strong wind.

Lott and Van Ryn Advance in Florida

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Favorites had little difficulty advancing in opening play of the Pan-American tennis championships here today as they went through the first and second rounds of singles play.

George Lott, Chicago, leading the seeded stars, turned back Bill Pannet, Cincinnati, 6—0, 6—1, in the second round after drawing a bye in the first.

John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., another of the seeded players, experienced little difficulty in disposing of Roy Cassini, Cincinnati, 6—0, 6—2.

MANCUSO SIGNS.

Houston, Tex., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Gus Mancuso, young catcher with the St. Louis Cardinals, today was en route to the Cards' training camp at Bradenton, Fla., after coming to terms over his 1931 contract.

Mancuso, a former Houston sandlot player, agreed to a one-year contract after a conference with Branch Rickey, Cardinal official. It was reported the Cards wanted to sign Mancuso to a three-year agreement.

Maryland U. Quintet Rated Dark Horse in Conference Tourney

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—There was much hammering and banging about the auditorium here today as carpenters began their work of erecting the big wooden court for the Southern Conference basket ball tournament starting Friday.

And as few competitions are without their dark horses, the workmen are assembling a stall for the current outside favorite. The boys on the street are picking Maryland as this team.

Several times the Old Liners have come South to the cage tourney with fine teams, but quintets without strength enough to stand the strain of a tough four-day grind.

Bill Raftery, V. M. I.'s plain-spoken coach, says Maryland is a better team than the Alabama five, which won last year. "They keep on playing no matter what the score is," Bill said.

And despite the fact Alabama is defending champion and ranked first by the basket ball committee, the wise chaps are naming Georgia to be ahead when they pay off after the last game.

Kentucky has many supporters, while a number of keen observers favor Tennessee. There are others who look for Georgia Tech to go a long way if the Yellow Jackets can throw their full strength team into the tournament.

And every one has high respect for the Duke team, which for two years has finished in second place.

G. W. Five Seeks 2d Win Over St. John's

George Washington's five travels to Annapolis today to engage St. John's College in the second game between the pair in a week. In the earlier clash the local club was victorious by a 30-26 count. Playing this time on the Johnnies' home court, G. W. is conceded to be at a disadvantage, and a triumph for the Annapolis team is not unlikely on this account, the previous game showing no difference in the strength of the rivals.

In the only game for home consumption tonight, Strayer and Southeastern will battle in a Washington Collegiate Conference tilt on the Central High court, starting at 8 o'clock.

High Spurns Minors; May Quit Baseball

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Andy High, former third baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, said today he was considering the advisability of dropping out of baseball if forced to go to Rochester, a Cardinal "farm." He has notified President Warren Giles, of Rochester, that he will not report as ordered.

High, whose timely hitting helped the Cardinals win their 1930 pennant, indicated he was bitterly disappointed over the transfer, because if he had remained with the Cardinals another season, he would be a ten-year man and a free agent if the Cardinals decided to drop him. As High believes the Cardinals do not have another reserve infielder as good as he is, he can not understand the transfer.

Benton to Pitch Again Following Operation

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—John C. Benton, more familiarly known as Rube, former big league southpaw pitcher, is to have an opportunity to prove he is not through as a baseball player.

Benton's release was announced last week by the Minneapolis American Association Club. His pitching hand was crushed in an automobile accident last year and Mike Kelley, manager, said he believed the injury had closed Rube's pitching career.

In a letter received today by Kelly, Benton declared an operation had restored use of his hand and inclosed newspaper clipping by Cincinnati sports writers to that effect. So Kelly has decided to take Benton to Hot Springs, Ark., with other Miller batterymen in March to prove his statements.

Godfrey Knocks Out Spaniard in Round

LAREDO, Tex., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—George Godfrey, Philadelphia Negro, knocked out Dick Russell, carded as Ricardo Rosel, in the first round of their scheduled twenty-round heavyweight fight here today.

Godfrey, who weighed 244 pounds, began the fight with heavy punches to Russell's head and body. He soon had Russell groggy. A short, powerful right to the jaw ended the fight.

Russell, who weighed 240 pounds, was booked as the champion of Spain and a successful fighter in South America and Mexico. He failed to strike the Negro with an effective blow.

Illness of Ban Johnson Continues as Serious

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The condition of Ban Johnson, former president of the American League, continued serious tonight. Dr. Robert F. Hyland, his attending physician, announced. The former baseball czar has been in a hospital here several weeks. A blood transfusion was performed Thursday.

Maude Parker in Charge Of Girls' A. A. U. Entries

4 Days Remain for Entries in Post's Tournament.

BECAUSE of the extremely efficient manner in which she served in the same capacity during the past four tournaments, Miss Maude Parker, director of girls' activities of the Municipal Palyground Department, again has been named to take charge of the two women's divisions in The Post's fifth annual A. Nats' Rookies Leave Today For South

Johnson Leads Band of Hurlers to Biloxi Camp.

Veterans En Route or Already on Training Scene.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

MANAGER WALTER JOHNSON, of the Nationals, when not interrupted by friends dropping in to say good-by, spent last night at his Alta Vista home practicing up on casino. And when "Sir Walter" starts practicing on this game it means that the baseball season is just about here, for casino and the national pastime are twinned up as closely as ham and eggs by the Nat leader during the baseball season.

Johnson gets his first casino workout today, starting at 11 o'clock, just after he has herded five pitching candidates and Coach Nick Altrock on a train headed for the spring training camp at Biloxi. The card game will be given the right of way over baseball until Thursday morning, when the Washington Club's battery candidates will take the field at Biloxi for the initial 1931 workout.

"General" Alvin Crowder will be the only veteran player in the group leaving here this morning. He came on from his home at Rochester yesterday morning looking pretty fit and declaring that he hopes to have the best season of his career.

Rookie Pitchers Reach Capital.

Art Fidler, the elongated twirler bought from Hagerstown, also reached here yesterday, coming from his home at London, Ontario, while Ray McMahon, former Pittsburgh University moundsman, arrived here Saturday from his home in New York. The others scheduled to make up the party, which will be chaperoned by Assistant Secretary Billy Smith and several scribes are Joe Smith, of Uniontown, and George Grayson, of Warrenton. McMahon, Joe Smith and Grayson are not signed, but are going on trial, with the promise of a contract if they make good.

Catcher Cliff Bolton is expected to board the Nationals' train as it hurries through High Point, N. C., his home town, while the others ordered to be on hand for the first drill at camp on Thursday morning are either there or en route. Catcher Roy Spencer and Pitchers Ad Liska and Carl Fischer are supposed to be motoring to camp now, while Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones, Catcher Ed Kenna and Coach Patsy Gharrity will go to the camp direct from their homes in Woodsfield, Ohio; San Francisco and Beloit, Wis., respectively.

Five Pitchers Now at Camp.

Hurlers Irving Hadley, Lloyd Brown, Bobby Burke, Lynn Griffith and Walter Tauscher are already at the Mississippi base, giving Johnson a crew of nineteen men to boss in the opening drill—thirteen pitchers, three catchers, two coaches and Outfielder Sam West, ordered to report early for treatments on his arm rather than for work.

If all of these show up as ordered, only three batterymen will be missing at the opening drill: Two, Pitcher Fred Marberry and Catcher Bill (Pinky) Hargrave, are taking preliminary work and radio-active baths at Hot Springs and are not due at Biloxi until March 1, while John Peregory, a rookie mound candidate, was delayed due to the necessity of a minor operation.

Reports from Biloxi are that Trainer Mike Martin and his trusty aid, P. Riley Baxter, have everything in readiness for the beginning of work, and that the former is entirely satisfied with the construction of the diamond. If this latter is correct, then the infield must be well-nigh perfect, for the Nat trainer, always fearing turned or sprained ankles, is a mighty hard man to please in this respect.

15 Pitchers With Yankees' Squad of 42 as Camp Opens

Eleven More Players Due on March 1; Cardinals, Braves and Reds Ahead in Uniform in Florida Towns.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Baseball practice for batteries and recruits making up the first squads of the New York Yankees and Boston Braves to arrive in camp, got under way in earnest here today.

Forty-two Yanks, including fifteen pitchers and five catchers, arrived yesterday and were doing light exercise this morning under the eyes of Manager Joe McCarthy and Trainer Art Fletcher. The second squad of Yanks, numbering eleven players, is due here March 1, when Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner, and E. G. Barrow, secretary, will arrive.

Hawley Incapacitated But Reds Start.

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Eleven ball tossers of the Cincinnati Reds went to work today at Plant Field, a new training camp here, in preparation for the 1931 season.

They were minus the guiding hand of Manager Dan Hawley. Reports here said the pilot stubbed his toe on the beach at Palm Beach a few days ago and doctors told him it's cure was more important right now than a major league ball club.

The batterymen starting training this morning will have two practices daily, coaches said. Three pitchers failed to appear with the squad. Eppa Rixey telegraphed he would leave Cincinnati today. Edward Strelecki, drafted from Milwaukee, did not say when he would report. Archie Campbell, recaled from Columbus, Ohio, had not signed nor reported.

Cardinals' Boss Okays Gambling; Small Stakes.

Bradenton, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The vanguard of the National League Championship Cardinals was to reach camp here today and go through their first drill. Riding through Georgia yesterday, Manager Gabby Street said he would not bar gambling, but the stakes must be large on poker. Street has set no limit on bridge.

Eight Form Vanguard of Browns' March.

St. Louis, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Eight Brownies, all rookies except Pitchers George Blaeholder and Chad Kimsey, and outfielder Tedd Gullic, today were en route to their spring training camp at West Palm Beach, Fla., where the first workout is scheduled for tomorrow. Among those in the first detachment is Catcher Pete Monono, last year with Indianapolis. He was signed as a free agent.

Basketeers Triumph Over Strayer's, 40-36

The Basketeers continued their winning ways last night by trouncing the Strayer's Sextet, 40 to 36, in a closely contested Washington Recreation League game played in the Calvary Methodist Gym. The battle was nip and tuck throughout, with the winners holding 22-to-19 advantage at half time.

Dunham, star forward on the Basketeers, caged twelve 2-pointers and two single pointers to lead both teams in scoring. Other feature players were Jolliff, of the winning sextet, and Darby and Myer, of Strayer's.

Central Enters Swim Meet for 16th Year

For the sixteenth consecutive year Central High has sent in its entry signifying its intention of participating in the annual South Atlantic interscholastic swimming meet March 7 at the Baltimore Athletic Club.

Coach Brunner, of the Blue and White natators, has turned over to the diminuntiv Joe Lyman the task of carrying on the Central tradition of capturing first place in the diving event of the big A. A. U. rally.

Thornton Burns and Beverly Carter, the former the captain and sprint man and the latter a 220-free-style specialist, are the only other Centralites Coach Brunner considered able to hold their own with the crack competition which the South Atlantic will attract.

No other local high school has entered the meet.

Londos Beats McMillen Before 20,000 Fans

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Jim Londos, of Greece, defended his disputed heavyweight wrestling championship before 20,000 wildly yelling fans in Madison Square Garden, throwing Jim McMillen, former University of Illinois football lineman, after 49 minutes and 15 seconds of wrestling.

The end came with Londos riding McMillen in midring and tugging industriously at the latter's left leg as the former football star pounded the floor with clenched fists.

Londos previously had slammed McMillen to that mat with the so-called airplane spin.

The big crowd, all the Garden would hold, paid $60,000 to see the show.

The trio of qualifiers was Harcourt M. Brice, Miami, who decided late today to enter the tournament after announcing he would not defend his 1930 title; Lee Chase, sr., and Jack Ahern, both of Buffalo.

One stroke behind the medalists was H. F. Bowbeer, Chicago.

Next in line were: H. B. Rust, jr., Providence, R. I.; T. Philip Perkins, of England, and William Connellan, Detroit, with 77's. Win Day, Chicago schoolboy golfer, turned in an 83.

30,000 to See First Miami Battle

Middleweight King to Concede 25 Pounds to Clevelander.

$60,000 "Gate" Predicted; Schmeling, Stribling on Card.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Under the same old palms, but with the breezes somewhat less balmy and the customers considerably less agitated, the 1931 outdoor heavyweight fight prelude will be played tomorrow night to the accompaniment of a sockfest between Mickey Walker, the theoretical middleweight champion with big ambitions, and Johnny Risko, the Cleveland plowboy.

Walker, spotting Risko about 25 pounds, will enter the ring for the ten-round feature match a favorite to repeat the victory he scored over Johnny in Detroit. The odds, however, were more than 6 to 5 in Mickey's favor, due to the determination Risko has manifest in his training as well as his habit of springing upsets.

Stribling, Schmeling in Exhibition.

As a warning of more serious affairs to come, W. L. (Young) Stribling, the pride of Georgia, and Max Schmeling, the young German holder of the world's heavyweight title, are slated to offer three rounds each of exhibition stuff for the benefit of the customers and as ballyhoo for their championship fight somewhere in the North this June.

These are the main attraction of the show promoted by "Pa" Stribling, energetic parent of the American heavyweight title challenger.

Unless the prediction of rain is fulfilled and upsets calculations, Promoter Stribling expects the Madison Square Garden arena, on the outskirts of Miami, to be occupied by about 30,000 customers, and the "gate" to reach $60,000, at prices of $2 to $5. The advance sale today, Stribling said, passed $20,000.

If the weather interferes the show will be set back until Wednesday night. The preliminaries, consisting of five six-rounders, are booked to start at 8 p. m., Eastern standard time, and the main go at 10 o'clock.

Talk of interference by "New York interests" seeking to have the Walker-Risko card called off, was ridiculed today by Stribling. He denied that there was the slightest connection between his organization and the Madison Square Garden Corporation, as has been rumored.

Bruen Says Carnera Will Fight.

Meanwhile, reports persisted, despite emphatic denials by Frank C. Bruen, the promoter, that the Primo Carnera-Jimmy Maloney bout, scheduled March 5 here, would be canceled. Carnera, still claiming to be affected by a cracked rib, has done no training for a week, but Bruen insisted the big Italian would still have plenty of time to get into condition.

"The fight will go on as scheduled," Bruen declared today. "I know that some interests here and in New York would like to have it abandoned, but the match is made, and I have no intention of calling it off. Carnera will be in condition to fight. He and his managers can not afford to run out now, with a heavyweight title bout in prospect in September with the Stribling-Schmeling winner."

Colonials Win, Near Lead In County Court League

Richard's Colonials moved up to within a half a game of the leaders, leading Griffith-Conaumers last night at the Silver Spring Armory when they defeated Hyattsville Southern Methodists by the score, 32-11, in a scheduled Prince Georges County League match.

In the other scheduled league game Company F forfeited to Mount Rainier for want of a full team.

MATE AND INSCO DUE CONSIDERATION FOR DERBY

Bostwick Colt Brilliant as Juvenile

Boasts Victories Over Twenty Grand and Equipoise.

Son of Sir Gallahad Best of Midwest 2-Year-Olds.

(This is another of a series dealing with the outstanding 3-year-olds of the turf).

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The future books are forecasting that A. C. Bostwick's Mate and Griffin Watkins' Insco will be up among the leaders, battling for the $50,000 purse, when the turf's best dash down the Churchill Downs stretch on May 16, in the Kentucky Derby.

Mate, third to Jamestown and Equipoise in the Belmont Futurity, third to Equipoise and Twenty Grand in the Pimlico Futurity and third in money making in the 1930 2-year-old turf division, is being held as the third choice in the Derby books at odds varying from 8 to 1 to 10 to 1.

Insco, which comes out of Chicago as the hope of the West against the strong Eastern array, is quoted at 10 to 1 in one book, while another offers as high as 20 to 1. The two colts hold similar positions in the future books for the Preakness to be run at Pimlico May 9.

Won 8 Races as 2-Year-Old.

The Bostwick colt scored five stake victories among his eight triumphs in fifteen starts as a 2-year-old, beat both Equipoise and Twenty Grand, was an outstanding factor in the Belmont Futurity and showed the way for one and one-sixteenth miles in the Pimlico feature of the same name.

Insco, a son of Sir Gallahad III, which sired Gallant Fox, was pounds the best of any 2-year-old developed on the Middlewest. Bad luck trailed the fleet colt, however, when he invaded the East, an injury preventing him from facing the juvenile champion, Equipoise, and mate in the Belmont Futurity.

There is no doubt about Insco's sprinting ability. At Arlington Park he set a new track record of 1:05 for 5½ furlongs.

Although George D. Widener's Jamestown will not be a factor in the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, the 2-year-old champion figures strongly in the Belmont Park, Arlington Park and Saratoga turf scraps. Jamestown was not named for either of the early 3-year-old features, his owner and his trainer, Joyner, being opposed to rushing their charges to the races.

Jamestown Showed Sprint Ability.

In his brief 2-year-old campaign of eleven weeks, Jamestown never was asked to go more than 7 furlongs, but won his six races at a 1:11 3-5 clip or better. Before going into winter quarters the son of St. James earned $151,925 for the master of Erdenheim.

Jamestown was defeated only once and then by Epithet in the Hopeful at Saratoga, to which he conceded 13 pounds. The defeat was avenged a week later at Belmont Park, however, when they met at even weights, and Epithet finished out of the money in the Futurity.

Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE fifth race at Hialeah Park today has attracted nine horses for a dash of 6 furlongs, which is the best of an ordinary card. MUD stands out in the race. In the last start of the Justa Farm's 5-year-old horse, he ran over PRINCETON in the stretch, to win by a length, in 1:12 1-5. PRINCETON should again assume the role of contender and hold the place safe. PERKINS, which defeated Scarlet Brigade in his last start, should be no worse than third, and, with his advantage in the weights, may be even more dangerous, but he has failed so far to equal MUD'S time at this track.

FIRST RACE—BALTHASAR is selected to win this race for 3-year-old colts and geldings. His recent form is far better than that of any other horse in the field of eight. He was third to Dee John in his last start, February 13, and should do better in this sprint than in the previous distance race. CARNIVAL appears the contender.

SECOND RACE—J. E. Widener's filly, FAIREST, should account for the purse. A large field of juveniles has been named for this race. FAIREST was backed to second choice in her previous start on February 4. PORTER'S DREAM is the contender.

THIRD RACE—PATRICK CALLAHAN showed a good performance last out when he finished second to Donie, and is in slightly slower company today. FLYING CHEROKEE is the most dangerous of the contenders.

SIXTH RACE—MARION ORMONT appears best, but there is very little form displayed by any one among the eleven eligibles. TANSY was backed in her last start last week, but failed badly against Stellanova. WINIFRED WEST is entitled to another chance.

SEVENTH RACE—DEE JOHN is picked. This gelding beat a smart field in his last start and is consistent. Donnie which won recently in a sprint, but lost Saturday in a distance race, may hold on for place in this event.

SWINFIELD'S DRIVE WINS AT MIAMI

Carreaud Horse in 2d Win; Ramus Takes Fourth.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Swinfield, carrying 120 pounds and under perfect handling, accounted for the purse in the Homestead Purse, a gallop of a mile and 70 yards and feature of an ordinary program here today. It was the second score for the F. A. Carreaud gelding at this meeting and the masterly way in which he accomplished it established him a fairly good prospect for the stakes to be run this spring. C. V. Whitney's Murky Cloud was second and Sandy, third.

Swinfield got away flying but Corbett, instead of rushing the gelding to the front, was content to let him rate along with Opponent, with Sandy third and Weatherproof fourth.

Murky Cloud Pushes Winner in Stretch.

In the run down the back stretch Corbett let out a wrap and Swinfield quickly drew away again. In the final furlong, Murky Cloud, rated off the pace in the early part, closed fast on the outside and forced Corbett to go to a drive to win by a length.

The winner paid $4.80 and ran the distance in 1:42 4-5.

Ramus made amends for his recent defeat by annexing the purse in the fourth race when he was home a head before Mortime, with Oslo finishing third.

Ramus was odds-on-favorite and ridden by Morrison and had to be much the best to win.

He got away in a tangle and was outrun for the first half mile, but was fortunate to get through on the inside, straightening out for the run home, and finishing gamely, won in the last stride. Mortime beat Oslo a half length for the place.

The winner paid $3.80 and ran the 6 furlongs in 1:12 2-5.

WOODBERRY FOREST WINS.

Special to The Washington Post.

Woodberry Forest, Va., Feb. 23.—Woodberry Forest's Basket Ball Team defeated Shenandoah Valley Academy here today by a 30-15 score.

Woodberry Forest held a 23-5 lead at half time, but in the last quarter the Cadets rallied and the victors were held to 7 points. The game was easily Woodberry Forest's from the opening whistle.

CAREER OF BANKING CHIEF FOUND ACTIVE

Ben Aley, Institute Head, to Address Financiers at Annual Banquet.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The twenty-seventh annual banquet of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, Saturday night, at the Willard Hotel, will be addressed by the heads of two national banking organizations. They are President Rome C. Stephenson, American Bankers Association, and President Ben Aley, American Institute of Banking. Mr. Stephenson's career having been previously reviewed, this article will be a brief biography of Mrs. Aley.

He was born in Nebraska and immediately upon graduation with honors from the public schools of Lincoln, he entered the employ of the Bradstreet Co., leaving it shortly to identify himself with the Lincoln Gas & Electric Light Co. A year later he joined the local office force of the Burlington System and remained with that railroad until his removal to Denver the following year. Three years of service with Armour & Co. terminated with his entrance into the banking business with the United States National Bank of Denver.

When Denver Chapter, American Institute of Banking, was organized in 1908 he became an active member, serving since in numerous capacities, including all of its principal official positions. He holds the institute's standard certificate and was admitted to the bar in 1921. For the past seven years he has been on the staff of special lecturers of the University of Denver.

Mr. Aley was appointed auditor of his bank in 1912 and at the same time was placed in charge of personnel. In 1917 he was elected cashier and auditor, dropping the latter title in 1919. He was further recognized in 1923 by election to the directorate of his bank, which was followed by election to the vice presidency in 1927.

In addition to his local institute work, Mr. Aley has been active nationally, serving as member and chairman of several important committees and attending nine annual conventions. He was elected a member of the executive council of the institute at the Baltimore convention in 1924, vice president at the Tulsa convention in 1929 and president at the Denver convention last year.

He is a member of the Denver and American Bar Associations, and in addition to his institute responsibilities is a member of the public education commission of the American Bankers Association.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Consumption of American cotton is on the upgrade, both in domestic and foreign markets, and prospects are for a better showing the latter half of the season, according to a survey by I. V. Shannon, in the current issue of the Trade Winds, published by the Union Trust Co. of Cleveland. The study points out that reduction of cotton acreage and increase of consumption are the two major problems facing the trade if prices are to regain normal levels.

New financing for Louisiana Power & Light Co. was announced in form of an additional issue of $3,000,000 of first mortgage gold bonds, 5 per cent series due 1957.

Cutting Crime by Science Proposed in Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., Feb. 23.—Favorable action by the legislature upon the recent proposal to curtail crime by means of science, made by Dr. J. H. Mathews, director of chemistry at the University of Wisconsin and widely known as a scientific crime investigator, is looked to by State scientific circles.

Dr. Mathews' proposal of a State scientific laboratory would be modeled on the plan of the Northwestern University crime laboratory. It is his belief that a good laboratory could be started and operated for $50,000 during the first year. To have it function at maximum efficiency, Prof. Mathews estimates that up to $80,000 a year should be available after it is established.

SENATORS TO PUSH VOTE ON MEMORIAL ROADWAY MEASURE

Howell Attacks Proposal for $2,700,000 More on Construction.

COST OF MT. VERNON ROUTE IS DEPLORED

Proponents Point to Need of Boulevard During 1932 Celebration.

Faced with the prospect that work on the George Washington Memorial boulevard will be stopped within a few days unless additional funds are provided in the meantime, Senate leaders yesterday launched a drive to force through needed legislation over the objections of Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), Nebraska.

Consideration of the bill has been prevented several times by objections from Senator Howell and no effort was made to force action on it in the face of these objections until yesterday.

Senator Howell sharply criticized those in charge of building the boulevard, declaring the failure to keep construction cost within the $4,500,000 authorized was outrageous.

Amendment Is Proposed.

He proposed an amendment providing that none of the $2,700,000 additional fund authorized in the pending bill should be expended until the Comptroller General had been convinced that the boulevard could be completed with the money.

"This boulevard has cost $286,000 a mile so far and now they tell us that they haven't enough to complete it by $2,700,000 provided in this pending bill," Senator Howell declared.

"In other words, those in charge of building this road have completely disregarded the limit of cost fixed by Congress. They have done as they pleased. Not even all of the necessary grading has been completed, yet all of the money has been used in actual expenses or in contracts which have been let.

Bureau of Public Roads.

"This is the sort of thing which brings discredit to Government work. It is time it was stopped. This boulevard, with a covered surface 40 feet in width, will cost $462,000 a mile without one cent for land. It is outrageous."

The work had been done under the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture, he said, and replying to a question from Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, as to why the cost had mounted so high above the estimates, said "they filled great sections and the filling went out of sight." He did not intend to oppose passage of the bill, he added, but he did think that a proper estimate of cost should have been made in advance.

Senator Simeon Fess (Republican), Ohio, chairman of the Public Buildings Commission, explained that the reason for the increase in the estimated cost was due to the fact that it had been decided to build the boulevard along the river side rather than to follow established roads. Senator Fess cited the cost of building across Hunting Creek where it was a mile wide as indicative of the increased cost. Necessary bridges also added to the estimated cost, he said. Moving two spans of the Highway Bridge also had not been contemplated in the first estimate, he said.

Measure Is Defended.

Senator Samuel M. Shortridge (Republican), California, came to the defense of the measure, as did Senator Claude Swanson (Democrat), Virginia, and in the course of the debate objection to consideration of the bill was made, and that ended the matter for a few moments, until Senator Fess formally moved to take up the bill.

Several voted against taking it up, but the preponderance of votes in favor led Senator George H. Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, presiding, to declare the Fess motion adopted without even pretending that there was a doubt about the vote.

Senator Howell immediately sought the floor again, and Senator Moses told him he could have five minutes to discuss his amendment, and discussion again became general, with the Nebraskan yielding to questions so frequently that he had time to add nothing to his first statement.

Traffic to Mount Vernon.

Senator Swanson declared that from 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 persons will visit the National Capital next year in the course of the celebration of the bicentennial of Washington's birth, and unless the boulevard was completed it would be impossible to handle traffic to and from Mount Vernon.

Senator Shortridge and Senator Fess declared that if the Howell amendment were adopted it probably would mean none of the $2,700,000 additional needed could be used for a year or more—until the comptroller general had adequate time to assure himself the roadway would be completed without additional cost.

The amendment was voted down loudly, and Senator Howell said he had understood it would be accepted by sponsors of the bill. Various members of the Senate broke in with requests and motions usually incident to the closing minutes of the day, and recess was taken, with the bill still before the Senate for consideration when the session is resumed today. Its passage is expected.

Popular Vote Hits At Prize Painting

Another Canvas Carries Off $100 Award in Exhibition Test.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The canvas "Annunciation," by the Argentine artist Alfredo Guttero, awarded first prize of $1,000 at the Pan-American exhibition of contemporary art here last month, was just an also-ran in a popularity contest participated in by those who visited the exhibition.

There were 858 votes cast and first prize, an anonymous gift of $100, was awarded to James Chapin, a New York artist. This canvas received 185 votes. "Annunciation" was given 40. Mr. Chapin also won the popularity prize last year at the Carnegie exhibition in Pittsburgh.

Shortly after the Guttero picture was placed in the exhibition and awarded first prize, it was called a profanation by the official Catholic newspaper of Baltimore.

Farm Loans Favor Cash Crop, Claim

Virginia Agricultural Agent Charges Discrimination in Federal Aid.

Christiansburg, Va., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Jean Wysor, agricultural agent for Montgomery County charged today that Federal authorities are discriminating against farmers in the Shenandoah Valley and southwest Virginia in approving applications for drought relief loans.

Farmers in eastern Virginia who raise such "cash" crops as peanuts and tobacco, he said, are having no difficulty getting their loans approved but those in the dairy and live stock district are having trouble because the crops they raise are to be used for feed instead of sold direct.

Mr. Wysor suggested that the distinction was made against the live stock sections in spite of the fact that many of those raising the cash crops and who are favored, already are in debt because their crops were financed on credit last year.

HUNT TRIALS HELD ON MONROE ESTATE

8,000 Gather at Historic Virginia Farm for Tests of Horses.

Special to The Washington Post.

Middleburg, Va., Feb. 23.—As a celebration of Washington's birthday the annual hunter trials of the Middleburg Hunt were held today at Oak Hill, former home of James Monroe.

Prominent society folk and lovers of horses thronged the grounds of the fine old mansion, under the tall oaks and amongst the English boxwoods planted by Monroe, watched the scarlet coats on the flying steeds as they overcame fifteen natural obstacles on the stiff 3-mile course. The rolling fields of the magnificent farm, now owned by Frank C. Littleton, who purchased the property from the Fairfax estate ten years ago, made excellent grounds for the trials.

Figures noted in smart society life of Washington, Baltimore, New York, Philadelphia and Richmond mingled with the sporting folk.

8,000 at Meeting.

A crowd estimated at 8,000 was present. Foremost among these were Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who motored down from Washington and, with a number of others, was a guest of Mr. Littleton for luncheon; Miss Edith Bolling, Mrs. Fairfax Harrison, Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Ogden Mills, Representative R. Walton Moore, former Senator and Mrs. William Cabell Bruce, Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, former Gov. and Mrs. Westmoreland Davis, Col. George Langhorn, of Chicago, and others.

There were 69 entries in th three classes and an open event. In the class for green hunters, Light Hampson, ridden and owned by Jack Skinner, was first; second, Thornback, owned and ridden by Mrs. J. H. Whitney; third entry, owned and ridden by Louis Leith; fourth, Red Soubrett, owned and ridden by Arthur White.

In the class for qualified hunters, What'll I Do, owned by Mrs. J. H. Whitney, was first; second, Time Lock, Miss Fannie Whitfield; third, Silvery Jim, Mrs. John Hay Whitney, and fourth, Etude, Miss Winifred Maddux.

Golden Corn Wns.

Middle and heavyweight hunters was won by Golden Corn, owned by Mrs. Arthur White and ridden by Mr. White; second, Sensation, owned by H. D. Whitfield and ridden by Miss Fannie Whitfield; third, Dumloyn, owned and ridden by Arthur White; fourth, Silver Cloud, owned by Mrs. J. H. Whitney.

The $2,000 silver bowl given by the Middleburg Hunt Club for the champon hunter of the trals was won by What'll I Do, owned by Mrs. J. H. Whitney and ridden by Arthur White. The reserve to light Hampson, owned and ridden by aJck Skinner.

There was one accident when Jack Skinner was thrown, as a horse he was riding stumbled, and suffered several broken ribs. Judges for the show were Iurman Stewart, of Monkton, Md., William Almy, jr., M. F. H. Quansett, Club South Newport, Mass.; Edward H. Carle, M. F. H. ARLINGTON SURVEYS APPROACH TO SPAN

Civic Bodies in County Are Acting to Get Land for Roadway.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Recognition of the fact that the Arlington Memorial Bridge is nearing completion with no apparent approach to it for the citizens of Arlington County was the purpose of a meeting of representative citizens from Fort Myer Heights, Clarendon and Lyon Village, with members of the county board of supervisors, County Engineer C. L. Kinnier and Commonwealth Attorney W. C. Gloth yesterday. A request was made that Washington avenue from the intersection of Wilson boulevard and Court street be taken over as the most logical approach.

Preceding the meeting the group headed by L. C. McNemar, as chairman of the committee from the Fort Myer Heights Citizens Association, made a tour of the proposed road. It was pointed out that the right of way to a point where the road crosses the Military road was now available to a width of 50 feet. As the section extending to the old Georgetown and Alexandria road passes through undeveloped territory, it was stated, it will be possible to obtain right of way easily.

County Engineer C. L. Kinnier stated a survey of the proposed route has been made as far as the Georgetown Alexandria road. He explained that the survey had not been made to the bridge head because the route of the connecting link to the Lee boulevard at that time had not been determined by the Government. The tentative estimate of cost with a 28-foot concrete surface was about $68,900.

Chairman McNemar stressed the point that with the failure of the Government, which appears possible, to pass the bill now in Congress for an appropriation to construct the connecting link to the Lee boulevard that Arlington County will be without an adequate approach to the bridge.

Upon motion by Robert E. Plymale, a committee consisting of Commonwealth's Attorney Gloth, chairman; Charles T. Jesse, Raymond Bause, W. O. Pickett and Monroe H. Stockett was appointed with instructions to proceed to obtain the necessary rights of way.

With assurance by County Engineer C. L. Kinnier that he will have the survey and blue prints completed without delay every effort will be made to present the project to the county board of supervisors at its March meeting, when the board will be called upon to take the project over and proceed with construction.

Mr. Gloth declared that after having gone over the proposed route that to him it was the most logical route for the county to take over. He pointed out that with an approach to the bridge over Washington avenue it will serve the greatest number of people of the county.

The board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce will meet tonight at 8 in the new headquarters in the Kelley Building at Clarendon.

Among the projects to be considered will be the formulating of plans for an organized campaign for the Federal Government approach to the new Arlington Memorial Bridge and for participation with other organizations in a general clean-up campaign for the bicentennial celebration in 1932. Among other matters will be the reading of the report from the special committee on transportation relative to the car line problem of which Ashton C. Jones is chairman, and the proposal of the logical approach to the Arlington Memorial Bridge.

Salvator De Madariaga to Address Students on Thursday Night.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 23.—Salvador de Madariaga, Spanish author and lecturer, will speak at the University of Virginia Thursday night as the second of the Virginia Quarterly Review l··vers for the 1930-1931 session.

Senor de Madariaga is one of the outstanding authorities of the world on both Spanish affairs and disarmament. He is on his third annual lecture tour of the United States, for he is a versatile speaker in English, as well as in Spanish and French.

"Englishman and Spaniard: Hamlet and Don Quixote," will be the subject of his lecture in Cabell Hall Thursday night, to which the public has been invited.

With King Alphonso's throne tottering, a study of the Spanish mind is especially timely to Americans. Prof. de Madariaga is the author of two books which interpret the mind of his countrymen and compare Spain and England. Among recent books which he has written are "Americans," "Disarmament," "Englishmen, Frenchmen, Spaniards," and "Spain."

Senor de Madariaga follows a distinguished group of speakers who have been brought here by the Virginia Quarterly Review. Among these have been Robert Frost, Bertrand Russell, Frank Kent, Stuart P. Chase, Stark Young, George William Russell, Julian Huxley, Andre Siegfried and Ghandi's woman lieutenant, Sarojini Haidu.

Vachel Lindsay will give a recital of his poetry here March 12 as the final speaker for this session.

Western Envoys Greeted by Edge

Washington Birthday Fete Attended by Men of Two Americas.

Paris, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Representatives of virtually every nation on the two American continents today were guests of Ambassador Walter E. Edge at the annual Washington's Birthday luncheon. Tribute was paid also to Simon Bolivar, the South American liberator who died 100 years ago last December. In many ways, the ambassador said in a speech, those great men, Washington and Bolivar, were much alike.

"Bolivar," said he, "knew suffering at the head of ragged, starving soldiers, and he knwe how to win his victories, how to lay the foundations of international friendship, how to give the world a knowledge of statesmanship and international cooperation which is as perfect a guide today as when he wrote his political treatises."

Philippe Roy, Canadian Minister and dean of the Western Hemisphere diplomats in Paris, expressed his country's interest in the progress of the Latin-American nations.

The Alabama Bible Society's report shows that 18,774 Bibles were distributed in the State during 1930.

BILL WOULD GRANT COUNTY PARK FUND

Amendment Is Proposed to Care for Projects in Prince Georges.

Prince Georges County's participation in the extension of the park system planned by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission will require no additional legislative action, if the pending amendments to the park bill are passed with the bill.

This bill, which will be introduced in the Legislature early this week, provides that the county may share in the $2,700,000 to be raised for parks, if the county commissioners will agree to be responsible for the sums used in the county. A limit of $800,000 is set in the bill upon the amount to be spent in the county.

The amendments provide that the Park and Planning Commission may issue bonds to the amount of $1,200,000, which, with State and Federal contributions, will make the total of nearly $3,000,000. If the amendment allowing Prince Georges to share in this sum were to be stricken out before the passage of the new legislation, special authorization for another bond issue would have to be procured at the next session. If the bill is passed as presented, however, the county may extend its park system at the discretion of the commissioners.

State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, who was injured when his horse fell Sunday afternoon, will not be able to leave Emergency Hospital today, according to Dr. William B. Marbury, who is attending him. Dr. Marbury, who is Senator Sasscer's cousin, was at first hopeful that the legislator would be able to return to Annapolis for the session tonight, but his injuries were more painful than at first thought.

Senator Sasscer incurred a dislocated shoulder and a sprained back when his horse fell while taking a jump on the farm of J. Lee Clagett, at Marlboro. He was treated by his uncle, Dr. Reverdy Sasscer, and removed to the Washington hospital.

The senator had been riding with Benjamin H. Bowie, and the accident occurred as they were returning to the stables. Bowie's mount cleared the bars, but Senator Sasscer's horse tripped over the top bar.

Two girls who are said to have left their homes in the county Sunday were reported back today, having been picked up after notice had been sent out by police, according to county officials. They are Eleanor Adams, 15 years old, of Seat Pleasant, and Beulah Cunningham, of Capitol Heights.

According to the report, they left home after the Adams girl had a quarrel with her mother, Mrs. Mary Adams. Police in Capitol Heights were asked to look out for them, but they are reported to have slipped through and reached Washington.

Injured in an auto accident on the Ager road Saturday, two men are reported still in a serious condition at Emergency Hospital. They are Richard Weigle, of 3222 Thirteenth street northwest, who has a fractured hip and leg and internal injuries, and Stanley Robertson, of 115 A street northeast, who is said to have a broken back.
